Turkey Farming The Right Fit For Eckert Family

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT ZION (Lebanon Co.) — While America is busy thinking about Indians and Pilgrims, football games and harvest decorations, the Eckert family is busy providing the centerpiece of many heavily-laden Thanksgiving tables — the turkey.

Kelly and Heidi Eckert, along with children Katie, 10, Kevin, 3, and Keith, 2, have 32,000 turkeys in their six-barn operation.

Bird-raising is a high-maintenance business. One batch of 16,000 turkeys consumes 450,000 pounds of feed delivered 20 tons at a time to the farm, and requires 6,000 to 8,000 gallons of gas, mostly to maintain the 80-degree temperature necessary when the birds are poults.

Kelly drives his own truck, hauling spring water five days a week. Heidi is a nurse at Lancaster General Hospital. "We're busy, but we enjoy it," said Heidi. "We don't sit around. It's more a way of life, if anything."

The Eckerts also utilize the help of neighbor Brian Weaver, who works six days a week at the farm.

Thirty acres of hay and 100 feeder-to-finish pigs round out the Eckert's operation. Kelly's father owns the adjacent 16-acre farm that houses the pigs.

Kelly, who grew up on a six-acre farmette, learned about the business and gained an appreciation for agriculture as he helped his neighbors farm.

The Eckerts researched different avenues to farm for two and a half years before settling on turkey farming. "We looked at all the different kinds of farms," said Kelly. "It's hard to get a farm to pay for itself."

The search included which farm "would be right for us," said Heidi.

More Than 700 Attend Ag Industry Banquet

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — With its theme, "With Vision There Is Hope," the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry conducted its 24th annual ag industry banquet Tuesday evening here at the Lancaster Host Resort and Conference Center.

Donald E. Horn, chairman of Pennfield Corporation, was honored with the George C. Delp Award, presented by Mark Price, chairman of the chamber's Agriculture Committee.

Price said that "the recipient's heart beats for agriculture in Lancaster."

The Delp Award honors individuals who have provided "significant and outstanding contributions to agriculture in Lancaster County," said Price.

Land Benefactors, Award Winners Named At Farmland Trust Annual Dinner

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Editor

MILLERSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — For the Lancaster Farmland Trust, last week's annual meeting again recognized land benefactors and farmland preservation supporters. In his report on the state of the Trust, Thomas Stouffer, president, was enthusiastic about this year's accomplishments.

"Farmland preservation has moved into the mainstream of both agriculture and good local and county planning," Stouffer said. "We have preserved 14 farms and over 1,100 acres in the last 12 months — bringing the Trust's total to 117 farms, double the number preserved just five years ago."

Stouffer said the Trust does more than preserve farms. They also follow and respond to important issues that affect the county's best farmland and therefore the lives of all the citizens. They take a pro-agriculture, common-sense approach to good county planning.

The annual meeting also highlighted a new book called "Lancaster County Farm Life" written by Sara Barton that features photographs by Gini Woy.

Eastern Region Frozen Eggs

ATLANTA, GA.
Nov. 17, 2000
Report Supplied By USDA

Majority prices were unchanged on sugar yolks, 1 cent higher on salt yolks, but lower on whites and whole when compared to a week earlier. The market tone was at least steady on yolks, mixed on whites and unsettled on whole. New trading was limited and with buyers continuing to watching further market developments. Supplies were usually adequate for current needs. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending November 11, 2000 were 1% more than last week, but 4% less than a year ago.

In Philadelphia, prices were unchanged to 1 cent lower for mediums and unchanged on the larger sizes. In Boston and New England, prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady to barely steady. Demand was moderate to very good and best where holiday features provided additional interest. Supplies were adequate for current needs. The New England shell egg inventory was 14 percent more than last Monday.

The Pennsylvania inventory was 16 percent less and the Delaware/Maryland inventory was 28 percent less than the previous week. Breaking stock offerings were fully adequate for the light demand. Light type hens were usually sufficient.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity remained unaggressive as dealers maintain marginal inventories and purchasing continues to center around the seasonal items. Supplies of boneless-skinless breasts were fully adequate to ample, although, not quite as burdensome today as attractive prices have helped to stimulate movement. Bone-in breasts were increasingly available at sharp discounts.

Dark meat items were more than sufficient, and leg quarters were building at times. In contrast, wings were closely cleared to tight at times with premiums usually noted. Movement into retail and distributive channels was limited as Thanksgiving items remain the focal point of the market.

The market tone was fully steady to instances firm on wings, barely steady to weak on bone-in breasts and leg quarters, no better than steady on the balance.

North Atlantic Shell Egg Market

Atlanta, GA
Report Supplied By USDA

In New York and Philadelphia, prices were lower on mediums and unchanged on the balance. Otherwise, prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady to barely steady. Demand was in a full range of light to very good and was best where holiday features were in progress. Supplies were adequate to closely balanced. Breaking stock supplies were at least adequate to fully adequate and demand for additional product was light. Light type fowl were usually sufficient for holiday requirements.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was limited as turkeys and other items typically active in advance of thanksgiving dominated trading. Seller offerings were more than adequate in handling seasonally lighter needs. Live supplies were moderate to light; weights were light to heavy, mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were light to moderate. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 55 to 69 cents. Trade sentiment remained about steady. Wings and gizzards were no more than adequate. Other cuts were at least adequate. ACTUAL SLAUGHTER WEEK ENDING 11/18/2000 WAS 10,427,060 @ 5.02 LBS.

POULTRY GUARD™
LITTER AMENDMENT

New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments.

Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation. Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance. In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower.

Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...

Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter.
- No incorporation
- No moisture activation
- No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application

Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set.
- No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
- No last minute application after equipment has been lowered

Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment.
- No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth

You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

NOV. 27-DEC. 3, 2000

CHILL DECEMBER

"And after him [November] came next the chill December; Yet he through merry feasting which he made, And great bonfires, did not the cold remember... " Edmund Spenser (1552-1599) penned rhymes such as this for each of the 12 months and thus gave us a modern-day prescription for warming the days of this wintry month. With the holidays ahead, festive feasts with family and friends may consume you. Mark your calendar now, reserving time for planting 'Paper White' narcissus, preparing baked gifts, roasting chestnuts or popping popcorn, and enjoying the snow—if you have some. Remember the gift of time; not all presents can be purchased.

Small gifts make friends, great ones make enemies. –Erasmus

TIP OF THE WEEK

SPICED NUTS

2 egg whites
3 tablespoons cold water
1 cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves, allspice, nutmeg, and mace
2 cups walnut halves
2 cups pecan halves

Preheat oven to 250°F Beat the egg whites with the cold water Sift the sugar and spices into the egg mixture, then toss nuts in this Spread the coated nuts onto oiled cookie sheets and bake for at least 1 hour. Cool, then turn onto waxed paper, spreading them out to dry separately Store in glass jars

Makes 2 pints.

Okla. National Stockyards

Oklahoma City, OK
Report Supplied By USDA

Compared to last week: Calves and light yearlings under 700 lbs 1.00-3.00 higher. Feeder steers over 700 lbs steady to 1.00 higher, feeder heifers not well tested. Demand good for all classes. Demand remains good for light numbers of feeder cattle, especially after last Friday's bullish COF report. Placements showed only 36 percent of the cattle placed in October weighed over 700 lbs and with continued light runs of feeders this trend is expected to continue. Quality plain thru attractive. Calves in thin to fleshy conditions with more dried out weaned calves included; feeder cattle in slightly thin to moderate flesh conditions. Weigh-ups average to gaunt, few full.

Slaughter cows 2.00-3.00 lower. Slaughter bulls 1.00-1.50 lower. Packer demand very light due to upcoming Thanksgiving holiday. Quality replacement cows sold noticebly higher as limited availability and high calf prices have raised the bar for these. Majority of cows returned to country for calving, grazing programs, or feedlots. Total of 720 cows and bulls sold with 35 percent to packers. Receipts this week 11,250; last week 11,135; last year 5816.

Supply consisted of 39 percent calves and yearlings over 600 lbs; 55 percent calves under 600 lbs; 6 percent cows and bulls. Heifers comprised 39 percent of feeder and calf supply.

OPINION

A National Day Of Thanksgiving

As we make plans for Thanksgiving Day, many of us have visions of family, food, and football. And those of us with young children probably have refrigerators adorned with artwork — Pilgrims, Native Americans, and turkeys shaped like a child's handprint.

I hope that we will also take time to reflect on the significance of this holiday in our nation's history. We, as Americans, enjoy so many blessings. Among these blessing is the religious freedom that the Pilgrims sought when they set out for the New World nearly four hundred years ago. They found this freedom, but with it came incredible obstacles to their survival. With help from Native Americans, they made it through their first year, and were blessed with a harvest that would see them through another very harsh northern winter. They celebrated their good fortune with the great Thanksgiving feast that we all learned about as children.

This tradition has continued for about 400 years. Beginning with George Washington, our presidents have annually called on all Americans to celebrate our great blessings. In 1795, President Washington issued a National Thanksgiving Proclamation that began: "It is our duty as a people, with devout reverence and affectionate gratitude, to acknowledge our many and great obligations to Almighty God, and to implore him to continue and confirm the blessings we experience."

We are blessed in this nation. As we join with family and friends during this Thanksgiving weekend, let us reflect on the many gifts that we, as a free people, often take for granted.

To Realize Manure Spreaders May Be Deadly

Three farm workers died after they climbed into a 4,755-gallon liquid manure tank (spreader) and were overcome by the fumes.

Police believe the men were killed by inhaling deadly methane gas when they climbed into the nearly empty tank to repair a faulty part. The methane gas had pushed the oxygen out of the tank. The men were using the mobile tank to spread manure on a farm.

One man entered the tank to make the repair, but failed to return. A second man went in to rescue him and the third was then prompted to go in after the other two failed to come out. The men ranged in age from 23 to 33. Police said criminal negligence on the farm owners has yet to be assessed.

This case reminds us that manure spreaders are a safety hazard that is often overlooked. Also, there could be criminal and civil penalties if the farm owner does offer and monitor a good safety program.

To Plant Trees

You do not have to cut down trees in order to save on your fuel bill. You may do just the opposite.

Plant trees to cut your fuel bill by considerable amounts. Trees, both deciduous and evergreen, can do wonders for you if you make careful selections, locate the trees in the most strategic areas, and supply plenty of patience.

Deciduous trees can cut the cost of cooling your house. By creating shade on the south and west walls of your house, as well as on the roof, they can lower the inside temperature by as much as 18 to 20 degrees. When the temperature cools down, the trees drop their leaves, allowing the sun to come through and raise the inside temperature during the cold months.

Evergreen trees may be placed to the west and north of your house to break the force of the cold winter winds that come down from the cold arctic air masses, usually from the northwest. Slowing the wind down makes it easier for your house heating system to do its job with much less fuel. You could reduce fuel usage as much as 20 to 25 percent with a mature windbreak.

Another ingredient is patience. If you plant conifers about four to five feet tall, it will take about 12 to 15 years for you to reap real dividends through smaller fuel bills. However, even when trees are only 8 to 10 feet tall they will already start helping to pay their room and board.

To Be Safe Around Grain Bins

Each year flowing grain takes the lives of farmers and family members. Flowing grain can quickly trap and suffocate a person working in a bin or storage area.

Typically the accident involves a young person less than 16 years of age. Accidents often occur when individuals are busy, in a hurry, become careless, and are taking shortcuts or simply slip.

Flowing grain can grab and pull a person under in as little as 10 seconds. It can take as little as two seconds to become helplessly caught in flowing grain.

The best defense against grain suffocation is constant attention to safety and prevention. It is extremely important to warn children to stay out of grain bins.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

NO 'GOLDEN OLDIE'

Background Scripture:
1 Kings 11.
Devotional Reading:
Nahum 1:2-8.

If, like me, you know the full story of King Solomon, you have perhaps shared my uncomfortable feeling while, in the last two weeks, we have studied passages extolling Solomon as Israel's king of kings.

"Uncomfortable" because, despite the superlatives heaped on him in the previous chapters, I knew that 1 Kings 11 was waiting for us around the corner.

This 11th chapter is an abrupt about-face. Despite the glowing expectations of his younger days, Solomon, has another side which is far from exemplary.

It would appear that the divine dissatisfaction came late in Solomon's life, but you can bet that it didn't happen overnight. In all likelihood, Solomon's dark side had been there for a long time and only became so evident in his later years. Early on it seemed that Solomon grew only better and better, but somewhere along the line he must have stopped growing in that direction. Despite his early prospects, the end was tragic.

What happened to King Solomon?

Reading 1 Kings 11 we might conclude that the fault rests upon the fact that "King Solomon loved many foreign women." So Solomon had several foreign wives. How did that turn him in the wrong direction? We know that in his day and for long centuries thereafter in many cultures, royal marriage was a political and diplomatic act. Kings married the daughters of other kings so as to strengthen an alliance or discourage invasion. David's many wives did not seem to inspire God's rebuke.

Those Foreign Wives

If we read on, however, we find two facts that help to explain the problem.

First, God had explicitly enjoined the people of Israel from marrying Egyptian, Moabite, Ammonite, Edomite, Sidonian, and Hittite women. Why? Because the Lord anticipated that these women would be a corrupting influence within Israel. The people of Israel needed to withstand the beguiling influence of idolatry and these women would make it more difficult to keep Israel unpolluted by the worship of idols.

Secondly, we find that Solomon did not have "a few foreign wives." In fact, the sheer statistics of Solomon's harem are astounding: "seven hundred wives, princesses, and three hundred concubines" (11:3). There were more than a thousand women in Solomon's harem. He could not justify seven hundred wives on the grounds of diplomacy, because Israel didn't have that many neighbors and enemies. There could be no justification for three hundred concubines as they carried no political or diplomatic clout. How could such a wise man ever be so foolish!

The writer of 1 Kings partly rationalizes Solomon's excesses by explaining that the king "loved" the women of his harem and "clung to these (women) in love." He loved a thousand women? One cannot love a thousand women if, by love, you mean he cared for them. If it means he made "love" to one thousand women, that's something else. Perhaps that is the key to what happened to Solomon over the years: he was obsessed with women; he could not have loved them.

He Loved 1,000 Women?

Also, I do not believe the problem was with the women themselves, but with Solomon. They were his obsession. Most of them probably had no choice in the matter. As women, they were merely the pawns of men, little more than property. Furthermore, they could not have corrupted him unless Solomon were corruptible. Assuming that they did represent a threat to his religious faith, it was his weakness that gave them that power.

So what was Solomon's weakness? I suspect that it was the corrupting influence of power. He knew God's commands against marrying foreign wives, but he believed he was above those commands. They just applied to others. You know the old quotation from Sir J.E.E. Dalberg: "Power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

Power is seductive, probably more so even than sex and sexual abuse is often really the abuse of power — imposing our will on others. It is like a drug that makes us insensitive to others and focuses us into a consistent compulsion to exercise more and more power. The son of Mussolini once remarked how much fun it was watching people run from shelter from his machine guns. Solomon's fantastic wealth and power dulled and overrode his early moral consciousness.

One does not have to be a king or president to be seduced by power. It can happen to doctors, lawyers, ministers, judges, journalists, military, business people, and labor leaders and factory workers. It can be just as real in your home and your community as well as in the seats of secular and ecclesiastical power.

Solomon's 40-year rule was long regarded as Israel's golden era. But despite his so promising youth, Solomon proved to be no "golden oldie."

Reinvestment In Western N.Y. Feed Mill Saves Jobs

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — A project facilitated by New York AgriDevelopment Corporation will pump new technology and new life into a western New York feed mill.

In the process, 16 full-time jobs will be saved and continued service will be assured to some 150 farm-families in western New York and northwestern Pennsylvania.

The product of a collaborative effort by New York AgriDevelopment and its public and private sector partners, the $3.3 million redevelopment of the Gramco, Inc. feed mill on the outskirts of Springville is exactly the kind of agricultural economic development project with which New York AgriDevelopment wants to be involved.

"This project represents reinvestment in agribusiness infrastructure," said Michael Chamberlain, New York AgriDevelopment's executive director. "We're proving that economic development can work for agriculture, too."

Gramco's operations had been consolidated to two plants — one in Springville and another in Franklinville — before fire destroyed the Franklinville facility last year. Saddled with the loss of its most modern plant, and realizing that its Springville plant was too antiquated to carry the load, Gramco was faced with the possibility of closure after more than 80 years in business.

Instead, New York AgriDevelopment and its partners at the Small Business Administration's Small Business Development Center, the Cattaraugus County Bank, the Town of Concord Industrial Development Agency, Empire State Development Corporation, and the Business and Professional Development Center at Jamestown Community College coordinated a program that helped Gramco develop its new business plan, provided financing for the new plant's construction, provided economic development incentives, and will provide training programs and assistance.

Construction on the 5.5-acre site began in October and will be complete next May.

Administration Announces Ag Marketing Grants

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. recently announced about $1 million to 22 organizations promoting Pennsylvania agricultural products.

"Pennsylvania agriculture has products for the planet," Hayes said. "And, through the hard work of these agricultural organizations and the product promotion grants, we are able to spread the good news about Pennsylvania's high-quality foods and agricultural products.

"Under this marketing effort, public and private dollars are working together to develop promotional and educational programs about our bountiful supply of food and fiber.

"It's easy to see why agriculture is the backbone of our state economy. Pennsylvania agriculture feeds the world. Our 60,000 hard-working farm families have an excellent record of productivity — helping to make us first nationally in the production of mushrooms and potato chips, and among the top five producers of such diverse foods as milk, chicken, trout, peaches and eggs."

Hayes said the $860,000 in grants — from the 2000 Pennsylvania Agricultural Product Promotion Matching Grants Program — are offered to qualified Pennsylvania nonprofit agricultural product promotion and marketing organizations to increase consumer awareness and sales of Pennsylvania agricultural products.

The 2000 grants will be matched by the organizations for a total of more than $1,720,000 for product promotion.

This year's recipients are:

- Hardwood Lumber Manufacturers Association of Pennsylvania — 2001 Forest Products, Equipment and Technology Exposition, $17,500.
- North Central Pennsylvania Regional Planning and Development Commission — Northern Pennsylvania Hardwoods Product Promotion Mission, $15,000.
- PennAg Industries-Poultry Council — Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program: Promotional Campaign, $50,000.
- Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program — Winter Retail Pennsylvania Select Apples, $31,500.
- Pennsylvania Fresh Mushroom Promotion Committee — Pennsylvania Fresh Mushroom Promotion Program, $150,000.
- Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council — Pork Products Promotion Program, $42,000.
- Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program — "Pennsylvania Produce...Simply Delicious" Promotion Campaign, $18,000.
- Pennsylvania Wine Association — Comprehensive Promotional Program for Pennsylvania Wine and Wine Grapes, $120,000.
- The Center City Proprietors — Pennsylvania Preferred, $36,000.
- Farmers' Market Trust — Promoting "Pennsylvania Produce...Simply Delicious" in the Greater Philadelphia Region, $44,000.
- Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture — Southwestern Pennsylvania Consumer Guide to Farm Fresh, $24,000.
- Pennsylvania Beef Council — Promotion for Beef Quality and Safety, $36,000.
- Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers Association — Christmas Tree Commodity Promotion, $16,000.
- Pennsylvania Composting Association — Marketing Compost Production and Use in Pennsylvania, $7,000.
- Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services — Dairy-Cyberspace Education and Promotion, $2,900.
- Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program — Make it Cool, Make it Cold, Make it Milk!, $147,500.
- Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders — 2000 Stakeholders Video Project, $6,750.
- Pennsylvania Landscape and Nursery Association — Promotion of Ornamental Horticulture in Pennsylvania to Consumers, $22,100.
- Pennsylvania Restaurant Association — Pennsylvania Pride in Pennsylvania Products in Pennsylvania Restaurants, $39,500.
- Pennsylvania Retail Farm Market Association — Direct to Consumer Promotion of Agriculture in Pennsylvania, $2,820.
- Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association — Pennsylvania Sheep Industry Expansion Project, $4,400.
- Rodale Institute — Marketing to Demand: Meeting the Needs of Today's Increasingly Aware Consumers, $13,000.

Hayes said that, during the past five years, there has been significant and steady growth of agricultural exports from Pennsylvania — approaching nearly $1 billion in 1999.

Hayes noted that Pennsylvania has the largest and most aggressive trade-development program for food, agriculture, and wood products in the Northeast, and one of the top development programs in the country.

"The new 'Products for the Planet' logo has created an identity for Pennsylvania agricultural products in the world market," Hayes said. "And recent trade events have resulted in sales of more than $14 million."

Gov. Ridge also has led trade missions to countries such as Mexico, Japan, South Korea, Vietnam, Germany, and Great Britain to promote Pennsylvania products such as produce and agriculture products.

One of every five Pennsylvanians is employed in an agriculture-related field. And agriculture generates $4.2 billion in annual cash receipts, as well as $44 billion in related economic activity.

For more information on the product promotion grant program, contact the Bureau of Market Development at (717) 787-6041 or visit the Agriculture Department homepage, which can be accessed through the Pennsylvania PowerPort at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us.

Diversification, Old-Fashioned Way Key In Long-Term Family Business

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

FREEBURG and MIDDLEBURG (Snyder Co.) — To market, to market... The Troutman family has been not only traveling to but also supplying the market for meat products for years.

Harry Troutman began not only a slaughterhouse business but also a retail store, operations which are still in place today and run by succeeding generations of Troutmans.

A farmer before moving into the meat-moving business, Harry Troutman began the company in 1917 on a small scale by working out of the barn and taking poultry to the nearby Sunbury Market. Later he added veal and then finally cattle.

"He used to go to Lancaster Stockyards to buy cattle and send them by rail," said Harry's grandson Sidney Troutman, who partners with his brother in N.S. Troutman and Sons. "They (Harry's son Norman and Harry's brother Charlie) would unload the cattle in Selinsgrove and drive them on foot to Freeburg, about five miles."

In 1946 Harry built a slaughterhouse, the same year his sons, Norman and Chester, took over the business and changed the name to NS and CH Troutman. The partnership processed approximately 15-20 animals per week.

"We've always done custom killing for farmers and wholesaled to local mom-and-pop stores," said Sidney. "He sold to mom-and-pop stores and to people that tended market. A lot of people don't have that anymore."

The business delivers to retail meat stores, restaurants, and bologna manufacturers.

In 1972 Lynn and Sidney bought the enterprise from their uncle Chester and went into business with their father until he retired in 1978.

"When my brother and I stepped in in '72, we were gung-ho. In the first five years we were up to 60 head a week, then we continued to grow to 80 to 100 cattle a week, which is what we try to maintain now. That's about as big as we want it to get. It's a whole new ball game when you get beyond 100 cattle a week. The size we are at is nice. We're a big little guy."

"We buy a lot of animals directly from the farm," said Sidney, who also buys cattle from cattle auctions.

As with all sectors of the agriculture industry, changing times mean a changing business and new challenges. "In the beginning, my brother and I were selling all our meat within a 20-mile radius," said Sidney. "Now we're reaching out and have expanded to a 100-mile radius to do the same amount of business. We find ourselves going further and further. We're also doing more and more micromanaging to make things work.

"From day one, the talk was that 'You're never going to be able to make it in the wholesale business,' so we figured out a way to do it," said Sidney.

"There's a right way and a wrong way to do everything. We do a lot of finding out how to do it the right way and sticking with it."

Diversification has been the management key to for a smaller company competing against bigger businesses. "We didn't give up custom slaughtering, and that helped," he said. "We feel that it was important for us that we hung onto custom slaughtering."

Sidney and Lynn also expanded the wholesale business to handle lean bull boneless. "We're one of the few places left to buy quality lean bull boneless," said Sidney. The boneless bull beef is sold for hamburger or bologna production. "There's a lot of bologna makers around Pennsylvania."

The brothers also lay claim to being one of the few places to sell swinging steer beef. "There are people out there that still like to buy beef and cut it down themselves," said Sidney.

The smaller stores which were a mainstay of the business when it was founded are still important to the Troutmans.

Sidney is also proud of the business' track record with their 20 employees, some of who have been with the business for many years.

N.S. Troutmans is also certified to kill organically, another way to diversify and make their own corner of a niche market. As a certified business, the facility must be inspected for cleaning procedures and products. Organic animals must be slaughtered before the other beef, kept on a separate rail, and processed first. The meat can then receive the special label.

He and his brother doubled the size of the kill floor and more than quadrupled the size of the cooler for hanging beef when they inherited the business.

The larger cooler allows for another specialty item for the Troutmans — aged beef. The beef is tagged and held three weeks to a month for customers who request it. "There's a fair amount of demand for it," said Sidney. "Most people don't know about the aging process and the packers don't have the facilities for it."

Selling boxed beef also has helped diversification.

Custom killing, which accounts for 10 to 15 percent of the total slaughter, varies seasonally, with Thanksgiving being busiest time.

Although modern refrigeration has taken care of the need to slaughter at this time of the year, tradition dies hard for farmers who aim to have their cattle finished at Thanksgiving, according to Sidney.

The Troutmans do their own grading in-house. Two cattle trucks and three meat trucks transfer the live animals and finished products.

Besides spending two days a week at the auctions, Sidney spends time farming. "I also personally check each animal I buy for yield and cost," he said. Lynn takes care of plant management responsibilities.

"We've always farmed along with this business," said Sidney, who handles the 120-acre farm. Corn, oats, barley, and hay are grown and sold for feed. "We also hold slaughter cattle with our own feed. We may have several cattle around for a week.

"The farm's been an asset to our business in that we can adjust our slaughter. We can always keep our beef fresh. If we get bought ahead we can just feed the cattle until we need them," said Sidney.

Besides beginning the butchering operation, Harry Troutman also ran a retail store in Middleburg along with the slaughter business. His sons, John and Claire, later took over the retail business and the two enterprises became separate entities.

Striking a balance between the old-fashioned way and new technology may be key to a successful business.

A family business since 1937, Brothers Frank and Elwood Troutman sold the business to Ron and Chester Troutman in 1972.

"Chester retired in 1982, and I was in business by myself until Aaron came last year," said Ron Troutman.

Aaron, 25, grew up working in the business and is the fourth generation of Troutmans to operate the market.

Troutman's Market, which employs eight people, includes retail stores in Middleburg and Selinsgrove plus a wholesale route which covers a 60-80 mile radius.

The boxed beef, turkey, chicken, and pork enters the Troutman's doors to exit as ring bologna, mini bolognas, ham lunchmeat, all-beef hot dogs, smoked turkey breast, smoked ham, sausage, turkey, chicken, and beef, or beef jerky. The business combines making old fashioned smoked products with modern processing procedures.

Employees take care of some custom killing at the slaughterhouse. Custom killing accounts for 10 to 15 percent of the total slaughter. Although custom killing varies seasonally, autumn is the busiest time.

"We have to be state-of-the-art-nowadays," said Aaron. "Time is money. The future in this business is definitely high tech to make it easier on everybody."

Three computer-controlled, self-cleaning smokehouses, a 20-needle injection system, and a vacuum stuffer comprise part of the production facilities at the Troutman operation. Production averages 1,500-2,000 pounds of bologna and 1,000 pounds of sausage per week.

According to Aaron, ring bologna is the biggest signature product, with hams coming in second. The holiday season, understandably, is the busiest time of year for the Troutmans, who move approximately 200 hams a week compared to 400-600 hams per week over the holidays. Fortunately, with today's processes a ham can be smoked and cured the same day. The injection system gives an even cure to ham.

The addition of the vacuum stuffer for sausages and hot dogs is an exciting development for

Award-Winning Project Evaluates Best Apple Varieties

WOOSTER, Ohio — The viability of the $1.6 billion U.S. apple industry depends on the ability of U.S. producers in 36 states to meet changing consumer demands domestically and internationally. A collaborative project called NE-183 is the apple industry's crystal ball into the future. Since its inception in1995, researchers at experiment stations across the U.S. and Canada have been working to provide growers with an objective and rapid analysis of the apple varieties best suited to the various apple producing states.

NE-183, otherwise known as "Multidisciplinary Evaluation of New Apple Cultivars," received the NERA 2000 Award of Excellence from the Experiment Station Directors of the Northeast, at their annual meeting at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center in Wooster, Ohio. NERA is the professional association of research directors from the land grant universities in the Northeast.

"Since its inception in 1995, the project has evaluated 50 new apple varieties that are most likely to impact the U.S. apple industry in the future," said Robert C. Seem, administrative advisor for the project, and associate director of the NYS Agricultural Experiment Station, in Geneva, NY.

"The purpose of the project is to determine which cultivars are most precocious, have superior quality attributes such as taste, texture, firmness, and storage potential, and which cultivars are 'grower friendly' to harvest and manage." Researchers identify which cultivars are least susceptible to insects, fungal and bacterial injury-information that can help growers select more sustainable production systems. The project also compares the cost of production and profitability of new apple cultivars, said Seem.

Apple varieties originating from North America, Europe, New Zealand, Australia, and Japan are tested. The collaborative project involves 21 states and three Canadian provinces.

The list of 23 cultivars in the 1995 plantings included Braeburn, Fuji, Ginger Gold, Honeycrisp, Fortune, Cameo, GoldRush and several advanced breeding selections from British Columbia, New Jersey and New York. In 1999, project participants planted 22 additional selections and cultivars like Ambrosia, Autumn Gold, Chinook, Delblush, Hampshire, Jubilee Fuji, Pink Lady, Pinova, Runkel, Scarlet O'Hara Silken, and Zesta. The intention is to collect uniform data sets from each planting for at least six years, but researchers may maintain plots for individual study thereafter. Thus, even after the collective work is completed, the plantings remain as a resource.

There are two NE-183 evaluation plots located in New York. One is at the NYS Agricultural Experiment Station in Geneva, where it is managed by Susan K. Brown, director of Cornell University's apple breeding program, horticulturalist Ian Merwin, and Cy Lee, postharvest physiologist. The other is at the Hudson Valley Laboratory, in Highland, NY, where it is managed by plant pathologist David A. Rosenberger, superintendent of the Lab, horticulturalist James R. Schupp. and entomologist Richard Straub.

"Unprecedented care has been taken to insure uniformity of the plantings and the data collection protocols," said Rosenberger. "Test cultivars are carefully selected from a single nursery, while planting, fertilization, pest control and other production procedures are defined by committee and modified only under careful scrutiny by the project participants."

"Establishing a new orchard costs more than $10,000 per acre, and most orchards require at least six years to reach full production," said Rosenberger. "Selecting cultivars for new plantings is one of the riskiest decisions that an apple grower must make. The NE-183 project provides growers with information that is essential for selecting cultivars best suited for their own planting locations and marketing strategies."

Research orchards in all 21 states provide a focal point for growers and industry representatives to actually see and evaluate these new cultivars first hand. State twilight and extension tours provide an excellent means to communicate the group's findings in a practical, efficient and timely manner.

The information developed by NE-183 is highly sought after by apple growers because it represents the most authoritative source of information that a grower can use prior to planting a new orchard. NE-183 has been recognized in the American Fruit Grower as a highly useful program of Agricultural Experiment Stations.

Apple cultivar evaluations from at least 25 experiment stations throughout the U.S. and Canada were ongoing before the NE-183 project was initiated, but evaluations were often conducted informally, and results rarely published in scientific journals. Trials were rarely coordinated across broad geographic regions, nor could data be directly compared because of differences in planting dates, rootstocks used, combinations of cultivars chosen for evaluations, and data collection methods.

"Considerable efficiency in total effort and improvement in the quality of information generated has been achieved with the coordinated cultivar evaluation program initiated under NE-183," said Rosenberger.

The latest information on new apple cultivars can be accessed on the web at http://www.VIRTUALORCHARD.net/ne183

For corn borer control, it's gotta be Garst®

Put away all your worries about corn borer resistance. Garst® has a plan that beats the corn borers!

First, if you've experienced corn borer damage in the past, plant Garst YieldGard® Insect Protected Corn for whole plant, season-long protection against corn borers. Second, use a Garst naturally resistant non-Bt hybrid for corn borer refuge acres.

Two Garst hybrid options help you fight corn borer problems before they start. And, they can minimize your worries about corn borer resistance.

West Snyder FFA Receives 'Three-Star' Emblem At FFA Convention

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — After ranking first of Pennsylvania's 149 FFA chapters in the National Chapter Award program, the West Snyder FFA application was forwarded to the National FFA Center for ranking on a national level.

West Snyder FFA chapter received a national "three-star" gold emblem at the 73rd National FFA Convention in Louisville, Ky., for its efforts in this program.

The three-star award is the highest level of achievement the National FFA bestows upon a chapter. Only the top 100 chapters of the nations 7,264 FFA chapters received this award.

The National Chapter Award program is designed to improve the chapter's program of activities, assist chapters in evaluating their accomplishments, and reward chapters for providing educational experiences for the entire membership. This program has the highest percent of participation of any program or event offered by the National FFA Organization.

While at the National FFA Convention, West Snyder members heard motivational speeches and presentations from Deborah Norville, anchor of "Inside Edition"; John Alston, author; Dr. Guy Doud, U.S. teacher of the year; and Carolyn Peck, WNBA coach. The members also attended a concert with country stars Toby Keith and the Wilkinsons. They toured Churchill Downs where they saw the Thoroughbred horses practice for the upcoming Breeder's Cup Race and toured the Louisville Slugger Baseball Bat Factory and Museum.

In a related activity, Heather Hollenbach, James Wright, Melissa McWilliams, Chuck Kessler, Lance Herman, Phaedra Wray, Derek Fetterolf, Hannah Etzler, and Daphne Wagner conducted two pre-convention workshops on the PALS (Partners in Active Learning Support) program. This program was conducted with 500 elementary students from the Louisville area and 500 volunteer FFA members from across the nation.

West Snyder FFA members conducted PALS presentations on agricultural literacy and team building skills. The first event was making "ice cream in a bag." West Snyder member Phaedra Wray dressed in a cow costume and distributed ice cream stickers while the students ate their ice cream. They also played "Foodo," a bingo style game which teaches the players about the basic four food groups.

West Snyder FFA distributed milk promotion erasers, pencils, stickers, and activity books sponsored by the American Dairy Association. Louisville elementary students also enjoyed playing "Peanut Butter River" with the West Snyder FFA members. This event requires a team building effort among its players. After a morning of mentoring with the FFA members, the Louisville elementary students departed for their schools.

The nine West Snyder FFA members were accompanied on the trip by Cynthia Shaffer, chapter adviser, and Dale and Teresa Wright, parents of James Wright, chapter president.

Pennsylvania Department Of Agriculture Gives Grant For Beef QualityProgram

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Producer education about beef quality assurance has been ongoing in Pennsylvania since the first National Beef Quality Audit a decade ago. Quality issues cost the beef industry millions each year, resulting in average losses to producers of $277 per animal. Surveys have shown that a majority of consumers are concerned about beef quality and safety, and that 22.3 percent of beef users say they resort to other protein sources more regularly because of quality and safety issues.

Because reversing these economic losses and strengthening consumer demand are so important to the future of Pennsylvania's beef industry, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture recently awarded matching funds of up to $36,000 to the Pennsylvania Beef Council — for a total budget of $72,000 directed to the promotion of beef quality and safety in Pennsylvania.

This project has three primary objectives: 1) to determine BQA guidelines that fit beef producers in Pennsylvania; 2) to train, certify, and recognize beef producers who adopt and maintain BQA guidelines and best management practices; and 3) to promote Pennsylvania beef quality and safety to Pennsylvania consumers.

With this program, Pennsylvania will join the ranks of 15 other states which already have nationally recognized BQA certification programs in place.

An advisory committee, comprised of cattle feeders, packer representatives, cooperative extension, and allied industry representatives will assist in developing the criteria for implementing the program. Using the minimum BQA standards of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, and considering what other states have accomplished, the advisory committee will make recommendations that reflect the needs of Pennsylvania producers.

The program will be coordinated by the Pennsylvania Beef Council, represented on the advisory committee by Executive Director Paul Slayton, with assistance from Penn State Beef Specialist Dr. John Comerford and Pennsylvania Director of Beef Quality Assurance Certification Wendall Landis, who also spearheads the Pennsylvania Blueprint for Success.

"We wanted producer involvement and a variety of cattle feeders to gather different ideas, because we want this to be your program," Landis explains.

Adds Comerford, "Food safety and quality issues will end up on the producer's lap. The purpose of this program is to address these issues to remain self-regulated in these areas."

While this program is voluntary, the concept is similar to the Pork Quality Assurance Program which has now been made mandatory by many pork processors who will only accept hogs from PQA certified producers. Already in the Midwest, it has been reported that at least one large beef processor began issuing letters that "strongly encourage" feedlots to adopt specific BQA guidelines in their production and management of cattle processed at their plants.

Drew Wilkins, head cattle buyer for Taylor Packing Company in Wyalusing, Pa. notes that "food safety is a major issue. We want to work together with producers to get away from these issues that drive the industry crazy."

To become a Pennsylvania BQA Certified Producer, cattle feeders will need to complete a two-pronged education program. In addition to receiving a practical BQA how-to handbook, the certification program will include a BQA awareness training session with a brief, general pre- and post-test, followed by a hands-on chute-side demonstration and participation session.

Certified producers will also agree to implement the checklist of Beef Quality Assurance practices on their farms. After completing the program, producers would receive a certificate of completion as well as ear tags or back tags to identify their cattle as coming from a Pennsylvania Certified Producer. The farm would also receive an attractive farmstead sign with the Pennsylvania BQA Certification Program logo, proclaiming the farm as a Pennsylvania Certified Producer.

The project also includes funds earmarked for retail beef surveys to discern Pennsylvania consumer attitudes toward BQA Certified beef products. Working with packers and retailers, it is hoped that eventually beef from BQA — Certified producers could be identified in the meat case.

"The primary thing that is different about this project, compared with past BQA education efforts, is that we're organizing the education in a more structured way, recognizing those producers who are doing these things, identifying cattle from the certified producers, and identifying consumer attitudes about the product," Comerford explains.

Lancaster County cattle feeder Karl Hess notes that "the veal and pork industries are already doing this and those processors are mandating it. As beef producers, the economic incentive for doing this can be found in avoiding quality discounts and avoiding the 'you've got a problem' phone call from the packer."

Record-keeping is probably the most difficult portion of any BQA program for producers to implement on their farms. Through the Blueprint for Success and the Penn State Cooperative Extension, resources are available to assist producers in developing the kind of record-keeping that will not only aid in beef quality assurance efforts but also protect the producer as the food industry, in general, moves toward farm to fork product identification.

Because beef feedlots handle more animals, are the coordinating segment of the industry, and are the last producer to manage the animal before processing, this voluntary certification program is being directed first toward cattle feeders.

Cow/calf producers, backgrounders, sale barns and order buyers should also be using BQA guidelines for handling and treating cattle, and they can become certified by participating in the program. In fact, as the project evolves and more states adopt such programs, certified cattle feeders will want to buy calves and yearlings from certified suppliers so that their efforts toward assuring beef quality are not compromised by the producer or market entity which produced, managed or handled the cattle before the cattle feeder receives them.

The BQA Producer Certification training will take place in several locations in Pennsylvania from late January through April, 2001. To find out more, contact Wendall Landis, Pennsylvania Director of BQA Certification, at (717) 702-2015, or the Pennsylvania Beef Council at (717) 939-7000.

Dairy Stakeholder's 2000 Viability Conference Set

Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders

CHAMBERSBURG (Cumberland Co.) - Are you committed to the viability of the PA Dairy Industry? Do you know what it takes to compete with the top dairy states? Want to hear some progressive ideas? Then make your plans now to attend the 2000 Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders' Conference, "Moving PA's Dairy Industry" scheduled for December 13 and 14, 2000 at the Holiday Inn Grantville, PA. The planning committee has successfully developed a program to stimulate thinking on how Pennsylvanians can lead the way to being more progressive and more competitive in all aspects of the industry.

Producers, suppliers, processors, educators, regulators and marketers will find the program inspiring and educational. Panel discussions that include producers, processors and other professionals will provide opportunity for everyone to actively participate in the conference.

A sampling of the speakers and topics include: Ed Wilgenburg, a 3000+ head dairy producer form Bakersfield, CA will speak on: "The Competition Has Low Input and High Production" and "Applying Wall Street Business Concepts to the Dairy"; nationally know Don Ault from Sparks Companies, Inc. will speak on "Improving Competitiveness – Are costs or revenues the real challenge?" and Helen Bishop McDonald from Dairy Farmers of Canada will entertain and educate with her presentation, "Eat these words: Promoting Dairy Nutrition to the Public." Plus local dairy producers, Phil Kulp, of Martinsburg, David Pool of Robesonia and Richard Waybright of Gettysburg share their insight on being competitive and progressive.

Everyone involved in the Pennsylvania dairy industry should attend this conference to

Dairyman to Dairyman

Question: This past spring we made a change to our dry cow program by increasing the concentrate level in the ration. We have better forages now and wonder if this practice should be continued. How can we tell if this change made any difference?

The impact of management decisions and changes are often hard to evaluate. I usually urge the dairymen that I work with to develop strategies to measure desired results. Without doing so we sit back and are faced with this type of question.

First I believe we should revisit the circumstances at the time of this change. Lower quality forages were available for the dry cows and body condition was lost during the dry cow period as a result. Normal concentrate levels are 1 to 1.5-pounds. This body weight loss created problems after the cows freshened, as smaller body reserves were available to tap during early lactation. Thin cows became the rule and lower milk yields were evident. Clinical cases of ketosis were rare, but the veterinarian suspected sub-clinical ketosis.

Health records are not readily available, but the herd is on DHIA test. We should look at the early lactation cows for this time frame and then compare to cows in early lactation now.

This frequency graph looks at the 20 freshest cows as of September 1999 and shows the level of production that made up an overall average of 66.5# milk for these cows. I used September figures so that we can compare cows fresh at the same time of year to minimize environmental influence. The following is the result of the September 2000 test. Both graphs look at cows the same age, lactation number, and days in lactation in an effort to compare apples to apples.

We use these pictures to show us the probable impact of a management change. What is significant here is that these similar cows have all benefited by the change of concentrate in the dry cow ration. The range of production stayed the same but has moved up by 10-pounds. September 1999 range for milk production of fresh cows was 30 to 100 and now that range is 40 to 110. We also note that the average production increased from 66.5 to 80.5, which tells us that the majority of cows have improved more than 10-pounds.

My theory on dry cows is that we need to maintain a certain ability to digest grains as well as maintain body condition. Most situations will need around five-pounds of grain to accomplish this. The cows here have responded well to changes while they were dry. Improved performance during early lactation is evident and I would hesitate to go back to minimal concentrate levels.

Changes are inevitable on dairies. When we make management decisions we should accompany them with a way to measure the impact. DHIA records are the heart and soul of that measuring process. Sometimes we can even enhance normal DHIA records with the use of a computer and software, such as Barn Owl 2000, which I used in the above graphics.

Long-Term Family Business

the business, according to Aaron. "We just started making hot dogs a few months ago. They're a little leaner and a little firmer than other hot dogs," he said. Aaron hopes that the growing popularity of the Troutmans' hot dogs make the summer busy as well.

A computer regulates the high temperature and humidity needed to produce the right texture of the products.

"It needs to reach temperature quickly so it doesn't get dry, since it will be recooked," said Aaron. A shower cools the product down quickly to avoid growth of bacteria and also keep the product from shriveling. Smoke from Canadian hickory chips makes the natural hickory smoke used to flavor the meats.

"We try to make things that are leaner," he said. "Customer demand is for less salty and leaner products. We make our dry beef less salty than the competition because that's what customers want."

Troutman cites government regulations as a major challenge to the business. "Regulations make it harder to stay in business with new programs and lots of paperwork," he said. "Two of us had to go to school to be certified to process our own meat."

Although the customer base for the business runs the gamut of ages and classes, Aaron has noticed that many of the clientele are middle-aged, married people in their 20s. "They're willing to make another stop for quality," he said.

The ring bologna, also referred to as "trail bologna," is made of beef rounds, has a natural skin, and is "made the same way as always, natural smoked, not sprayed with liquid smoke," said Aaron. The bologna fits the bill for today's customers because it tests out at 85-88 percent lean.

"It's not emulsified, it's ground, which makes it a little more coarse," he said.

The recipe for a signature product, according to Aaron, means not only quality products but a commitment to going the extra mile.

Berkeys Give $3 Million For Food Science Building

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — An internship by Penn State dairy science student Jeanne Claycomb in Somerset County more than 50 years ago has ultimately led to a $3 million gift to the University.

As an intern at a dairy processing plant, Claycomb met and later married Earl Berkey, whose family owned and operated the plant. Jeanne and Earl Berkey eventually assumed ownership of the plant and operated it until 1968 as the Berkey Milk Co. They recently decided to give back to Penn State in the form of a $3 million donation to help construct the Food Science Building.

Now in the planning stage, the building will contain laboratories, classrooms, offices, pilot-scale processing facilities, and a new Creamery manufacturing and sales area. It will be located about a block east of the current facility, the 68-year-old Borland Lab.

The new creamery facility, to be located on the first floor of the new Food Science Building, will be known as The Berkey Creamery in recognition of the couple's generosity.

"The Creamery is a Penn State tradition and hosts thousands of visitors every year, so how appropriate for Penn State to receive this marvelous gift from a couple who have devoted so much of their lives to the dairy industry," said University President Graham Spanier.

The building is estimated to cost $22 million in combined private, state and University funds. Design for the building is scheduled to begin in 2003 and the building is to be finished early in 2006, according to the University's five-year capital plan.

Jeanne Claycomb Berkey, a Bedford County native, is a 1948 Penn State graduate. Earl Berkey, a Somerset County native, is a 1948 graduate of the University of Iowa and the Penn State Creamery Short Course. Earl Berkey's father, L. Clayton Berkey, entered the dairy business in Somerset in 1925. After Jeanne and Earl Berkey sold the plant, they continued in the retail ice cream business until 1977, after which Earl turned his attention full-time to banking. He retired in 1983. The Berkeys now divide their residence between Somerset and Phoenix, Ariz.

"We went to banks and tried to estimate the cash flows on steers, pigs, dairy, and chickens, and this seemed to work out a the best match for price-per-income," said Kelly.

The size of an available farm, 20 acres, made farming affordable and opened the door for turkey farming in 1997.

"Everything was running, we just walked in and took over," said Kelly.

Although Heidi grew up on a small poultry operation in Ohio, Kelly was new to the poultry business. Consequently he spent a month at the turkey farm with the previous owners to learn how to manage the farm.

"I got the basics down that I could survive on, and just keep getting better as I go," he said.

The turkeys, which come to the farm when they are one day old, will leave the farm as finished birds 13 weeks later. The Eckerts process six batches of turkeys per year through their barns. They grow their turkeys under contract with Wampler Foods in New Oxford, Pennsylvania. Wampler Foods supplies the feed, medication, birds, and shavings for the barn floors and the Eckerts supply the labor for care of the turkeys.

Because of the current demand for turkey, the barns are filled with turkeys year-round. "Years ago, people did one flock a year for Thanksgiving, but turkeys got more popular. It's not just a treat anymore — you can get turkey any time," said Kelly."The turkey market's really strong right now."

No cold turkey on this farm — one batch of 16,000 turkeys requires 6,000 to 8,000 gallons of gas during their stay at the farm, mostly to maintain the balmy 80-degree temperature necessary when the birds are poults.

"Turkey meat is nutritious and low in fat and people are really health conscious anymore," said Heidi.

Caring for turkeys, as typical of any agriculture operation, is a full-time job. The water fountains are washed every day for proper sanitation, and all of the birds must be checked several times daily and through the night. The Eckerts rototill the litter once a week to keep the turkeys' bedding fresh and put in new shavings in and sanitize the barn for each incoming batch of poults.

In addition, the barns' ventilation system is changed manually three to four times daily. Shutting flaps and curtains controls the speed of air flow and consequently the temperature for the turkeys.

Changing ventilation involves watching the gauges and adjusting accordingly to ensure not only proper temperature but also keep down the ammonia levels detrimental to turkey health. An alarm system rings the phone in the Eckert's home if the temperature drops to dangerous levels or the electricity goes off.

The feeding, fortunately, is automatic. The first seven days, however, after the poults arrive at the barn they are fed by hand. Feed is scooped into the small trays for the poults. As the poults grow and are able to reach, the automatic feeders with pelleted feed are lowered from the ceiling. Rings surround the poults and keep them not only snug in their 80-degree atmosphere, but also keep the birds from crowding together too much, according to Kelly.

The poults, which arrive at the farm in batches of 16,000, come to the farm from a Wampler hatchery in Harrisonburg, Va. They are started in two brooder barns and moved to the four finisher barns as they mature.

The Eckerts move the poults out of the end of the building onto a ramp which leads onto a trailer. The trailer then hauls the birds up the hill to the finisher barns. Each barn is 40 by 200 feet.

When the finished turkeys leave, they weigh 13-16 pounds each, usually 16, said Kelly.

"We haven't had trouble with health because we maintain biosecurity," said Heidi.

"When somebody comes from a farm, we spray the vehicles tires, fender walls, and undercarriage," said Kelly.

Mortality cards, feed slips, and feed conversions are the records which the Eckerts keep for the operation. Kelly checks the feed and gas levels every other day.

The Eckerts would like to expand with numbers in both the turkey and swine portions of their farm. "We'd like to get to the point where we can have all our children have farms," said Heidi. "Hopefully they'll have interest. Age and time will tell."

Kelly, who hopes to get out of the hauling business, plans to triple the size of the hog operation in the next year.

Katie, an aspiring veterinarian and already an important part of the Eckert operation, is proving her interest in the agriculture business. A fourth grader at Jonestown Elementary School, Katie takes care of the pigs, 30-40 goats, and helps with the turkeys. Besides helping out on the family farm and completing her schoolwork, she is also actively involved with the North Mountain Goat Club.

Kevin and Keith, proud wearers of green John Deere hats, enjoy riding on the tractor. "I think the farm is good for children to learn a work ethic," said Heidi. "Sometimes children get too involved with TV or video games, and farming is a good way to show them what a good work ethic is."

Katie, who would like to be a veterinarian, is already an experienced animal handler. Her brother, Kevin, is quickly learning the ins and outs of producing turkeys.

The best part of turkey farming, according to the Eckert children, is getting a shipment of new poults. Kevin, 2, and Keith, 3, carefully cradle one-day-old poults. The boys' father, Kelly, describes the birds as "very nosy and curious."

How Is Organic Matter Content Measured?

Jennifer G. Becker
Extension Engineer

Why do we need to concern ourselves with the amount of organic matter that is present in wastewater?

It is important to know what the organic matter content of a waste stream is because it influences the selection of a suitable method of wastewater treatment and disposal.

Other important wastewater characteristics that must be considered when selecting a treatment method include the rate of production and the levels of solids and nutrients such as nitrogen and phosphorus.

Example: A food processor is exploring sprinkler irrigation as a potential method for treating and disposing of the processing wastewater because several sites with appropriate soil characteristics are available for irrigation.

However, if some wastewater components are present at high levels, irrigation may not be possible. For example, excessive suspended solids in the waste may clog irrigation equipment and soils. High levels of salts can also sometimes be a problem, although normal rainfall in the Mid-Atlantic region is generally sufficient to leach salt out of the soil.

Nutrient management plans, which are required by the Water Quality Improvement Act of 1998, may also limit application on the basis of the nitrogen and phosphorus content of the wastewater.

Finally, consideration must be given to the organic matter content of the wastewater because high loadings of organic matter can cause excessive build-up of soil microorganisms that grow on the applied organic material. This can cause a microbial slime layer to form on the soil surface, which can lead to soil surface clogging, and in turn, surface ponding, unpleasant odors, and vegetation decay.

Because organic matter can play such an important role in determining the success or failure of wastewater treatment methods, permits from the Maryland Department of the Environment for land application or surface discharge of processing wastewater define limits for the amount of organic matter that can be applied.

These permits also define nutrient and other parameter limits, as well as hydraulic loading rates and application schedules.

What is actually measured when we quantify the organic matter in wastewater?

Frequently, we do not need to know the concentrations of individual organic compounds present in wastewater. Instead, it is often sufficient to have a combined measure of the mixtures of organic compounds found in wastewater. Two of the most commonly used measures of the combined organic content of wastewater are expressed in terms of oxygen demand.

These two measures are called the biochemical oxygen demand (BOD) and the chemical oxygen demand (COD). At first, use of the term "oxygen demand" to report organic matter content may seem confusing. This convention is used because most organic compounds in water undergo oxidation reactions, and if dissolved oxygen is present, these reactions con-

Bolyard Represents Pennsylvania

Shelah Bolyard, daughter of Charles and Rebekah Bolyard, Mercer, PA, represented Pennsylvania in the National Beef Ambassador Competition in San Francisco, California on November 3-5, 2000 in the annual scholarship competition.

" It was exciting to meet people from all over the United States who take beef seriously, they had issues," said Bolyard. "Some of them come from ranches over 1000 acres big and produce over 600 head of cattle every year. Most of them entered the competition to for future agriculture jobs. I really learned a lot about beef and would like to speak to Pennsylvania groups about my experiences at Nationals."

The Beef Ambassador Competition included a barbeque and rodeo at the Cow Palace, a tour of San Francisco, Embassy Suites room and air fare.

Bolyard and her sister, Sarah, mother, Rebekah, and grandmother, Ruth Woods, also toured the Presidia Military Base and Fort Point, Golden Gate Bridge, Fisherman's Warf, Alcatraz, China Town by cable car, and the Rain Forest Restaurant.

Bolyard won the Penn State Competition during 4-H State Days in August, 2000. She represented the Mercer County 4-H program.

To get information on the local competitions, contact your county 4-H office and request the State Days rules and regulations packet.

The National Beef Ambassador Program was conceived in 1988 as a scholarship event by the National Cattlewomen and then by the National 4-H Cooperative Extension Program. In 1995, the American National Cattlewomen received beef check-off funding from the Cattlemen's Beef Board to expand the program, which today involves all youth in 50 states from ages 15-19.

The purpose of the National Beef Ambassador Program is to train spokespersons for the beef industry. Through preparing for the competition, contestants become knowledgeable about the nutritional and economic values, by-products, food safety, and versatile uses of beef.

Trained youth ambassadors can address issues and misconceptions in schools, workplaces and in their communities both urban and rural. Contestants participating in the National Beef Ambassador Competition presented a five to eight minute illustrated talk on the promotional aspects of beef and participated in a hands-on beef education workshop.

For example, the oxidation of organic matter can be carried out by microorganisms, that is, it occurs through biochemical reactions. In the presence of dissolved oxygen, the biochemical oxidation of organic matter is carried out by aerobic microorganisms according to the following generalized reaction:

Organic matter + oxygen + nutrients + cells ⇒ carbon dioxide + water + ammonia + new cells

The amount of oxygen needed to react with the organic matter in the above equation is equal to the biochemical oxygen demand of the organic matter and is measured in the BOD test.

The oxidation of organic matter can also occur through strictly chemical reactions. The amount of oxygen that reacts with the organic matter in the strictly chemical reactions is not measured using the BOD test. Instead, it is measured using the COD test, which does not involve microorganisms. The BOD and COD tests are similar in that they both measure the amount of organic matter present in a wastewater indirectly, by quantifying the amount of oxygen that is used up in biochemical or chemical reactions.

New York Farm Bureau, Apple Association Announce Agreement

GLENMONT, N.Y. — There is no other agricultural industry in New York facing the multitude of challenges that the apple industry is currently facing.

After several years of low apple prices, the recent hailstorms and other unusual weather conditions have severely impacted grower finances.

The Environmental Protection Agency has targeted this industry and has already restricted key crop protectants under its interpretation of the Food Quality Protection Act (FQPA). The Immigration and Naturalization Service has targeted growers in various raids. And finally, they will be the first and most impacted if the state enacts stricter regulatory mandates in addition to the already burdensome federal requirements.

It is for these and other reasons that the New York Apple Association and the New York Farm Bureau have initiated a more direct working relationship.

In order to provide a clear message to our lawmakers and the governor, the New York Farm Bureau will advance legislative, regulatory, and budgetary initiatives that the New York Apple Association and New York Farm Bureau members hold as joint interests.

It is anticipated that this will strengthen the communication within the apple industry and provide a level of focus on the public policy problems of the industry never before achieved when the organizations operated independently, according to the Farm Bureau. Just as importantly, limited grower dollars will be used efficiently on their behalf.

At the same time, the newly reorganized New York State Horticultural Society will continue to perform invaluable service for the industry by concentrating first on the research, extension, and other economic needs of the apple industry.

Contributions, both corporate and individual, covered the cost of the publication of this record of the daily life of seven Lancaster County farm families. Sales of the book go directly to the Trust for use in local farmland preservation efforts.

State Sen. Noah Wenger brought a legislative proclamation sponsored by Wenger and Sen. Gibson Armstrong, that complimented the Trust in the success of saving farms in Lancaster County.

In the special awards presentations, DLD Advertising was named the corporate sponsor of the year for their work in producing the farm life book. Turkey Hill received the Amos H. Funk Spirit of Cooperation (Corporation) award; Manor Township received the Amos H. Funk Spirit of Cooperation (Township) award; and Frank Ludwig received the Amos H. Funk Spirit of Cooperation (individual) award. Ludwig also received the Earl Township Farmland Preservation Trust award presented by Kathy Ashcroft.

Gini Woy was recognized as Volunteer of the Year for her work in photography for the farm life book. Woy had received part of the Volunteer award several years ago.

As always, recognition was given to the land benefactors. They are, Richard and Ruth Bruckhart, Rapho Twp.; Anna Metzger, Eden Twp.; Levi Groff, Sadsbury Twp.; Roman and Lucy Stoltzfoos, Sadsbury Twp. Mary Landis, East Lampeter Twp.; and four more Amish farms listed as anonymous, one in Earl twp.; one in Eden Twp.; one in Sadsbury Twp.; and one in Little Britain Twp.

Stouffer reported that in conjunction with the County government farmland preservation program, a total of 450 farms with 40,000 acres of preserved farmland in Lancaster County is in sight. Officials expect this benchmark to be reached sometime early in 2,001. That will give Lancaster County the most farms and the most farmland preserved in any county in the nation.

USDA To Offer Webcast

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA will offer a live audio Webcast of the general sessions of the National Agricultural Transportation Summit in St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 28-29.

The general session will begin at 1 p.m. on Nov. 28 and will include remarks by USDA Under Secretary Michael V. Dunn, U.S. Department of Transportation Assistant Secretary Eugene Conti, and Surface Transportation Board Chairperson Linda Morgan regarding transporation challenges in the 21st century.

The general session on Nov. 29 begins at 1:15 p.m. and will feature a panel discussion on foreign perspectives on transportation infrastructure as related to grain trade, a discussion of rural transportation issues, and an open forum where representatives of farm groups will give their opinions on USDA's long-term agricultural transportation challenges as presented at the summit.

Woskob Family Endows Chair In International Agriculture

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Real estate developers Helen and Alex Woskob of State College have endowed the Woskob Family Chair in International Agriculture with a gift of $1.5 million to Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The distinguished faculty member to be appointed to the Woskob chair will focus on creating partnerships in the Republic of Ukraine for student and faculty exchanges and for collaborative research on improving the production and marketing of agricultural commodities.

"Helen and Alex Woskob generously have invested their time, expertise and resources to benefit Penn State and the State College community," said Robert D. Steele, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences. "This endowed chair will enhance the education of countless students here and abroad, create knowledge to help Ukraine and other countries to better feed their people, and foster international goodwill and understanding."

Natives of Ukraine, the Woskobs are founders and co-owners of State College-based A.W. and Sons Enterprises. Since 1963, they have developed numerous real estate projects in Centre County, including housing for thousands of Penn State students.

The Woskobs have a long history of support for higher education. In 1992, they established the Ukrainian Agricultural Exchange Program, enabling collaboration between the College of Agricultural Sciences and the Ukrainian Agricultural Academy. They have been involved in the university's Ukrainian Studies program and have served on the advisory board of the Centre for Ukrainian Agriculture.

The holder of the Woskob Chair in International Agriculture will be appointed by the university's executive vice president and provost on the recommendation of the dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences.

Do You Suffer From Fibromyalgia?

When I was introduced to New Image I was 50 pounds over weight and suffered from fibromyalgia I was so depressed and in pain the majority of the time. I was taking steroids and four other medications, one of which made me so 'groggy' I could hardly get out of bed and another gave me ulcers I began taking New Image secretly because I thought my family would make fun of me After a month, I discovered I had lost eight pounds and seven inches Wow! Then it dawned on me, I was feeling better, the depression and pain were gone In two months I was off all medications "I feel SUPERIFIC!" Now, two years later I have lost 43 pounds and 30 inches. Thank you New Image for giving me a new life again Judy Swift - Mt Washington, KY

Geneva Experiment Station Library To Receive $2.1 Million Gift

GENEVA, N.Y. — Frank A. Lee, Cornell University professor emeritus of food chemistry, has left an estate gift valued at more than $2.1 million to the library at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, in Geneva, NY. Lee, who conducted pioneering research in the freezing of fruits and vegetables, worked at the Station from 1936 until his retirement in 1967.

He died on September 25, 1999, at the age of 98, in Waterloo, NY.

Lee was devoted to the Experiment Station, and, in particular, to the library there. He was an ardent proponent of maintaining strong university libraries so scholars could pursue peer-reviewed research in their chosen fields. In his will, Lee specified that his bequest be used to purchase library resources that "can be of use to the research staff," including important back issues of scientific journals missing from the Geneva collections, scientific journal subscriptions, and a small portion for "modern scientific books."

"In recognition of this extraordinary gift, the Experiment Station library will be renamed the Frank A. Lee Library," said Janet McCue, Associate University Librarian for Life Sciences. "The gift will benefit station researchers as well as the entire Cornell community. Journals that are of value to the Geneva community are just as important to Ithaca researchers. And, when the journal is in electronic form, it is immediately accessible to faculty and students on either campus."

"The timing of this gift could not be better," said Station Director James E. Hunter. "The acquisition budget of the Experiment Station library has grown only moderately during a period when the cost of print literature has increased significantly. At the same time, scientific literature is rapidly becoming available electronically. These funds will help the Station gain access to this valuable resource. Professor Lee's generosity will ensure that the Library will continue to meet the needs of the faculty, staff, and graduate students at the Station."

"This gift is a tribute to the value of the library to the station community, and a tribute to the dedication of former librarians and library staff." said Marty Schlabach, director of the Experiment Station library. "The gift will allow the continuation of print journal subscriptions and expansion of access to electronic journals."

Lee's associates in food science remember him as very private, conscientious and hard-working man, who liked to hunt and fish, collect early American antiques, cook, and travel, especially to Germany where he had family.

As professor of food chemistry, Lee conducted research on the blanching and freezing of fruits and vegetables when that industry was in its infancy. He was perhaps best known for his studies on the oxidation of lipids in vegetables and in explaining the role of oxidation and other changes in the deterioration of frozen fruits and vegetables, particularly peas, snap beans, soybeans and carrots. Lee had more than 65 peer-reviewed scientific articles published during his career plus numerous review articles and bulletins. In addition to his work at Geneva, Lee traveled extensively in Europe, presenting lectures at international symposia on food and biological chemistry.

Born in Seattle in 1901, Lee received his B.S., M.S., and Ph.D from the University of Washington. Before coming to the Experiment Station in 1936, he was an assistant chemist for the State of Washington; an assistant professor of pharmacology and food chemistry at Duquesne University, where he eventually attained the rank of associate professor; and a post-doctoral associate at Leland Stanford University where he worked in the Food Research Institute.

With 19 unit libraries and a total of more than six million volumes in its collection, Cornell University Library is one of the 10 largest academic research libraries in the United States. The New York State Agricultural Experiment Station was established in 1882 by an act of the New York State Legislature. The Experiment Station library is one of the oldest in the Cornell system.

Glickman Announces $12 Million In Water Quality Improvement Grants

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman recently announced $12 million in grants for research and education projects that will help improve water quality for all Americans.

The projects will facilitate protection of water resources in agricultural areas and enhance opportunities for farmers and those in surrounding communities to adopt voluntary approaches to help improve water quality.

"These grants will help improve one of our nation's most precious natural resources — water," said Glickman,

The awards will fund the following programs:

• Five Regional Coordination Centers in Colorado, Rhode Island, Idaho, Wisconsin, and Texas will create a national data base of local, state, and regional water quality projects and provide assessments of water quality problems within and between regions. These projects also will coordinate water quality research, extension, and education programs between USDA, EPA, and other state and federal agencies.

• Nine projects in Arkansas, Arizona, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, New York, Oregon, and Washington will improve watershed management in agricultural areas through integration of research, extension and education activities on the fate and transport of water borne pathogens and other pollutants of agricultural origin.

• Connecticut will create and oversee a national network of local-based projects that address the impact of agricultural land use on water quality. Rhode Island will establish a national clearinghouse of information on conferences, seminars, publications, and internet resources for technical guidance and instruction of CSREES volunteers who will monitor water quality across the country.

• Wisconsin will establish a national water outreach and education database allowing individuals and communities to access resources and best management practices for water quality.

• Eight extension and education projects in Alaska, New York, Nebraska, New Mexico, Ohio, and Washington will enable local citizen groups to preserve rural watersheds and drinking water resources, access water quality education, protect waterways through increased use of buffer strips, and improve water assessment programs for small farms and under-served communities.

More information on the program is available at http://www.reeusda.gov/nre/water/406award.htm.

Lancaster County Farms Get Low-Interest 'AgriLink' Loans

HARRISBURG — (Dauphin Co.) — Lancaster County farmers Herman Zeager and Merle Stolzfus are among the first farmers in Pennsylvania to receive low-interest nutrient management loans under the AgriLink Program administered by State Treasurer Barbara Hafer and Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes, Jr.

Hafer and Hayes were here today on Zeager's farm to present Zeager with a $52,394 check and Stoltzfus with a $47,400 check. The AgriLink loans are helping the farmers protect the environment through sound nutrient management practices.

"This program will help Pennsylvania's number one industry to continue thriving while preserving our rich water resources," Hafer said. "This is an investment in our streams and the watershed from the Susquehanna River all the way down to the Chesapeake Bay."

"The AgriLink program is an effective tool for Pennsylvania's livestock producers to consider as they develop and implement Best Management Practices on their farms," said Secretary Hayes.

"Each of these projects will help keep our water pure," Hafer added. "So it's not just an investment in these farms, it's an investment in a cleaner environment and a brighter future."

Hafer and Hayes said the new AgriLink Program was a result of months of cooperative work among their departments, the General Assembly, the Pennsylvania Bankers Association, the Pennsylvania Association of Community Bankers and the Pennsylvania Farm Credit Associations.

Loans are available to farm owners or operators participating in Pennsylvania's Nutrient Management Program. The loans will cover the costs for manure storage facilities, improved storm water management practices and other approved practices under the Nutrient Management Program.

Farmers with approved nutrient management plans are eligible for loans up to $75,000 at sharply reduced interest rates, with loan terms of up to seven years.

Under the AgriLink Program, eligible lenders determine each applicant's eligibility and determine the interest rate for individual loans. The Treasury Department provides loan funding by investing state funds with participating lenders in the amounts of approved AgriLink loans.

The State Conservation Commission, with the assistance of the Agriculture Department, buys down the interest rates on loans provided through the program, resulting in a below market rate for farmers.

Officials said farmers can receive loans at an interest rate four percentage points below market rates, resulting in significant savings over loans at conventional interest rates.

The State Conservation Commission, with the assistance from the Agriculture Department, administers the program jointly with the Treasury Department. Throughout the state, more than 160 banks and branch offices, and 24 Farm Credit Offices, are eligible to participate in the program.

PastureMat®
The Golden Standard In Cow Comfort

Pack Mat
Reduce Sand • Increase Cow Comfort

Why Pasture Mat?
- Pasture Mat is tightly stuffed with rubber and sewn every 4" to prevent shifting
- Proven most durable top cover
- Least abrasive top cover on the market.
- Fits any stall
- Proven performance

- The perfect complement to any sand stall
- Owners report sand savings up to 80%
- Yielding surface does not allow sand to compact
- Prevents "digging out" of stalls

began his career as a poultry feed salesman in 1956 with D.E. Horn, a local feed company. In 1971, D.E. Horn became Pennfield Corporation, and Horn became sole owner of the business in 1981.

Horn served as president of the corporation from 1985-1996. Since 1996, Horn continues to serve as chairman of the board for the company.

Pennfield processes 23 million broilers each year (one of the U.S.'s top 50), and manufacturers more than a half million tons of feed each year (making it the 19th largest in the country). The company owns Banner Foods, Goodhart Meats, and Ritter Foods, and employs 650.

Horn, who has served on several poultry and other agri-industry councils, said the industry has "hardworking, capable people." Horn said, if he has made any contribution, "hopefully it is to strengthen this industry in the future."

Rural Activism

Guest speaker at the annual banquet, attended by 740, was Bruce A. Vincent, who helped form and serves as president of Communities for a Great Northwest, a nonprofit education and information group dedicated to the intelligent use of natural resources.

Vincent is outspoken against ill-advised, unknowledgeable environmental activists with few credentials who aggressively try to set policy for responsible stewards of the land.

The business manager of Vincent Logging, a three-generation logging company founded by his father in Libby, Mont., learned that rural America is not "politically impotent" and that the rural population is not "disposable," contrary to what others were trying to tell him.

The past summer proved that aggressive environmentalists were wrong in their attempts to allow nature to handle the workings of a forest environment. After the "storm of the century" passed through 2.5 million acres of woodland, 165 forest fires were generated in two hours. The forest "burned and burned and burned," said Vincent.

Some staunch and ill-advised environmentalists, according to Vincent, noted they would "rather see it burn than man-aged by people."

He said, "We have a fuel problem with too many trees," with the wrong sizes, types, and in the wrong places, which fuels fires. Those who understand forest ecology know that 50 tons of debris to the acre is manageable; 500 tons, as exists in the areas he knows, is not.

As a result, nature's work made the family realize it will take "eons to regain my children's forest," Vincent said.

Stubborn and ignorant environmentalists, according to the logging company executive — if the plans are followed — could rob the region of about $100 million in revenue. The tourist industry would have to bring in a million people and have them spend $100 each to make up for the lost economy.

That type of proposed "industrial tourism," noted Vincent, could create real problems.

Middle America, said the multiple timber award winner, is trying to create "a Disney-esque eco-topia that has never before existed," where people believe they are "going to places like 'Bambi,'" Vincent said. But if we hurt our ecology, we will "never see a healthy economy."

Without the healthy, free-enterprise system that has stood successfully in place, we "don't have the economic ability to protect our environment."

And if poverty drives business, then environmental issues "sit way in the back," Vincent said.

"There's a fine line between environmental sensitivity and environmental insanity," said the logger. "And we're beginning to cross the line."

Vincent related the true story of a man trying to protect his home from a grizzly bear assault. The courts nearly tried to make the grizzly the victim.

And, said Vincent, America remains 300 votes away, as of the banquet night, "from a president who wrote in his book that 'man is a cancer on this planet.'" The book is called "Earth In the Balance," by Al Gore.

"How did we get so crazy?" said Vincent. The statements by the vice president should have been questioned.

The general population remains mostly ignorant about logging. In Montana, the joke goes that many people believe wood comes from "a bunch of boards that show up at the Home Depot," said Vincent (similar to the line, where does milk come from? — a carton in the convenience store).

Stewards — farmers of the land — despite some imperfections, provide the best managers of resource, according to Vincent.

He pointed out three truths about rural America: democracy works (it's not a spectator sport); "when people lead, leaders follow," he said; and rural people need to create a line item for "activism" in their business planner, right next to equipment and maintenance, he said.

"The world is run by those who show up."

Activism is simply taking an hour a week to become active in school, calling a legislator, talking to the state or U.S. secretary of agriculture, or simply writing a letter to the editor of the newspaper about rural issues.

Vincent was active in helping to push the agenda of the League of Rural Voters. Their mission: to get 80 percent of all rural Americans to the polls in November.

That would be about 55 million of the 250 million people in the country. It would create a voting block of 40 million people, maybe just enough to provide the "swing vote" necessary to elect a president to the office.

The organization's Website is at www.ruralvoters.org.

"Our future," said Vincent, "is going to be the product of someone's activism. And it should be ours."

Century Farm Awards

Several families were honored as Century Farm Award recipients. They include:

- Marc and Estella Grove, Marietta. The farm has been in the family since 1892.
- Loren and Mary Landis, Lancaster. The farm has been in the family since 1883.
- Charles and Janet Leaman, Ronks. The farm has been in the family since 1896.
- Paul Minnich, Lititz. The farm has been in the family since 1834.
- James and Ruth Rutt, Elizabethtown. The farm has been in the family since 1837.
- John and Cheryl Zimmerman. The farm has been in the family since 1870.

Master of ceremonies for the event was Rick Haines, ag director of the Northern Ag Network, a five-state network coverage area that produces radio and TV programs, and president of the National Association of Farm Broadcasters. He oversees the production of 165 radio and 10 television programs each week.

Haines is the author of "Cowboy Spirit," a book that takes a satirical look at ranching life complete with cartoons.

Brent Landis, ag services coordinator with the Chamber, spoke about the many different ways the Chamber reaches out to bring the message about agriculture.

According to several who spoke, the banquet is the largest county ag banquet in the state.

Managing Manure Deposition By Grazing Livestock To Benefit Pasture Performance

Paul R. Peterson
Extension Forage Specialist
Virginia Tech

Nutrient cycling in pastures is a dynamic process involving the natural movement of mineral nutrients through soil, plants, and livestock, and the manager's manipulation of these components.

Livestock affect nutrient cycling when they graze pasture plants and consume mineral nutrients, including nitrogen (N), phosphorus (P), and potassium (K), and then return most of those mineral nutrients to the soil in their manure and urine.

This paper will focus on the livestock and manager's manipulation components of pasture nutrient cycling. It will include a discussion of the characteristics and impact of livestock manure (and urine) on pasture, how animal behavior relates to nutrient excretion patterns, and how we can design grazing systems to optimize the distribution of manure and urine return by grazing livestock.

Only small proportions of the N, P, and K that grazing animals consume are actually retained in animal products. On average, a cow/calf pair removes 10 pound N, three pound P, and less than one pound K annually from two to six acres. Thus, a dairy where purchased concentrates are fed can actually have increasing nutrient levels on pasture. Since livestock excrete most of the mineral nutrients they consume, manure and urine from grazing animals represent valuable sources of fertilizer nutrients if they are distributed uniformly across the pasture.

Cattle defecate and urinate, on average, 12 and eight times per day, respectively, but this can vary substantially. Since grazing animals generally excrete at sites other than where the nutrients in that excreta were consumed, nutrient redistribution occurs. Interestingly, the sites of highest concentration of these excretions are somewhat predictable based upon an understanding of grazing livestock behavior.

The manager should strive to design and manage his/her grazing system to enhance uniformity of manure and urine, and thus mineral nutrient, return without incurring excessive costs or unduly affecting animal performance.

What Is The Impact Of Livestock Excrement On Pasture Production?

The response of pasture forage production to animal excretion includes both short-and long-term effects, depending upon which nutrient is being considered.

Short-term forage production responses are largely an N response, and to a lesser degree a K response via the relatively higher concentration of these elements in urine.

An individual urination can range in size from 1.5-feet^2 to over four-feet^2 in ground coverage, but the area of influence of the nutrients in the urine can be considerably larger.

This short-term response is especially evident in N-deficient pastures. However, in contrast to P and K, there can be significant uncontrolled losses of N on pastures. On average, 25 percent of the nitrogen in urine and feces deposited on a pasture can be lost to the atmosphere via ammonia volatilization.

P and K are the primary nutrients implicated in more long-term pasture responses. New Zealand researchers performed an experiment where they applied cattle manure with low or high P concentration to pasture in simulated piles of about 0.5-foot^2 in ground coverage. They discovered that the manure pile affected forage growth in a zone five-fold larger than the area physically covered by the pile. The area influenced had 14 percent more forage yield and 23 percent more P than pasture areas outside the area of influence.

The researchers attributed the large zone of influence of the manure pile to lateral wash by rain and lateral spread of roots and stolons (for example, white clover). Based on their results, they estimated that under heavy stocking, more than 50 percent of a pasture is directly influenced by manure pile nutrients at any one point in time. They also speculated that this is an underestimate, since in a grazier's pasture, lush spring and fall pasture usually results in more liquid, widely-spread manure, and cattle kick and carry manure on their feet as they travel about a pasture.

Research in the UK documented that extretal return by sheep increased perennial ryegrass-white clover pasture yield by 26 percent and 53 percent at ten and 20 yearling wethers per acre, respectivelv.

Can We Predict Where In A Pasture Livestock Will Excrete The Most?

If livestock spent proportionate amounts of time on all areas of a pasture, excretions would uniformly cover the pasture and optimize nutrient cycling. This is not the case, however, because livestock are attracted to certain areas of pastures.

Manure and urine deposition patterns are influenced primarily by water, shade, and topography. Location of water has a profound effect on manure distribution. Iowa researchers reported that after five years of continuous grazing, soil in the five percent of the pasture area closest to water had P levels six-fold greater than the remainder of the pasture and K levels almost four-fold greater.

Missouri researchers found that after four years of a three-paddock rotation on a 32-acre pasture stocked at 2.6 acres per cow-calf pair, soil in a zone extending 40-feet from the watering site had P and K levels four and 10 times those, respectively, in the rest of the paddock (Figure 1). Both research groups

Hoss's Steak And Sea House Buys Adams County Champion

ARENDTSVILLE (Adams Co.) — The 16th Annual Adams County 4-H Beef Show and Sale was conducted here at the South Mountain Fairgrounds.

Grand champion 4-H steer, owned by Justin Diehl, Fairfield, was purchased by Hoss's Steak and Sea House, Gettysburg, for $2.50 per pound. The Adams County Beef Producers Association donated the champion steer banner for Justin, and Southern States, Taneytown, donated the banner for Hoss's.

Chris Jeffcoat, Littlestown, showed the reserve grand champion 4-H steer. GVM Inc., Biglerville, purchased Chris's steer for $1.50 per pound. The reserve champion banner for Chris was donated by DeKalb Genetics and Hickory Bridge Farm Restaurant donated the banner for GVM Inc. Hoss's donated the champion steer back to the Scholarship Fund for resale. The steer was bought by Hoke Mills Inc., Abbottstown.

Auctioneer for the sale was Harry Bachman, Annville, and Wendall Landis, Lancaster, served as show judge.

The annual cake was decorated by Joanne Boyer and donated to the 4-H Beef Club to support show and sale expenses. It was bought for $200 by Hoss's Steak and Sea House and donated back to the sale. Three additional buyers also donated the cake back to the 4-H Beef Club. The buyers included George M. Wildasin, C.E., Inc., Long Plumbing and Heating, and Hickory Bridge Farm Restaurant. The annual wooden clock was bought by G.S. Communications. Monies from the sale of the cake and clock will be applied to the expenses of the show and sale.

Junior division fitter/showman results: 1. Champion: Ben Weikert, Gettysburg, trophy donated by David Jeffcoat Building and Remodeling, Dave and Deb Jeffcoat. 2. Reserve champion: Owen Weikert, Gettysburg, trophy donated by Emjay Acres, Harry and Mary Jane Hilbert.

Intermediate division fitter/showman results: 1. Champion: Stacy Menchey, Littlestown, trophy donated by Carl E. Frantz, Inc., Betty Frantz. 2. Reserve champion: Liz Hitz, Littlestown, trophy donated by Bucher Meats, Harry E. Bucher.

Senior division fitter/showman results: 1 Champion: Missy Jeffcoat, Littlestown, trophy donated by Reichart's Custom Slaughter Shop, Littlestown 2. Reserve champion: Derek Byers, Biglerville, trophy donated by B. Equipment Inc, Waynesboro.

Advanced division fitter/showman results: 1. Champion: Bert Martin, Orrtanna, trophy donated by Pioneer Seeds, Donald R. MacBeth. 2. Reserve champion: Cami Topper, East Berlin, trophy donated by Growers Equipment Center, Inc., Jim W. Showers.

Results of lightweight division classes: Class 1: 1. Cami Topper, buyer Lease's Auto Body.

Class 3: 1. Owen Weikert, buyer Bergdale Ins. 2. Candice Flickinger, buyer Ag Com. 3. Derek Byers, buyer South Mountain Farm.

Champion lightweight: Owen Weikert.

Results of middleweight division classes: Class 4: 1. David Martin, buyer Southern States Taneytown. 2. Stacy Menchey, buyer Southern States Taneytown.

Class 5: 1. Justin Diehl, buyer Hoss's Steak and Sea House. 2. Chris Jeffcoat, buyer GVM Inc. 3. Liz Hitz, buyer Coca Cola Direct Delivery.

Class 6: 1. Missy Jeffcoat, buyer Donald R. MacBeth. 2. Ben Weikert, buyer Gettysburg OBGYN and Jack Gaughen, ERA. 3. Lee Seymore, buyer G.S. Communications.

Results of heavyweight division classes: Class 7: 1. Bert Martin, buyer J F Waybrant. 2. William Bailey, buyer Bailey's Logging. 3. Dwight Byers, buyer G.S. Communications.

Class 8: 1. Courtney Meyer, buyer GVM Inc. 2. Marsha Bailey, buyer Herr Tavern.

Champion heavyweight: Courtney Meyer.

The grand champion steer was shown by Justin Diehl, right, Fairfield. Justin's steer was purchased by Hoss's Steak and Sea House, represented by Bill Campbell, center, for $2.50 per pound. The champion steer was resold to benefit the "Beef Club Scholarship Fund." Hoke Mills Inc., Abbottstown, purchased the steer. Bill Hoffman is at left.

DHIA Meeting

CLARKSTOWN (Lycoming Co.) — The annual DHIA dinner meeting was held in the Muncy Creek Volunteer Fire Company Hall, Clarkstown, under the direction of vice president Kevin Stahlnecker, Cogan Station.

Ron and Lori Hembury, Muncy, earned the Top Herd Management Award for Lycoming County. Ron and Lori Hembury also had the greatest increase in protein, with 45-pounds and the highest herd in butterfat production with 913-pounds.

Highest producing dairy herd in protein production was Bosch Farms, Muncy, with 802-pounds. Bosch Farms had the highest herd in milk production with 25,451-pounds. Charles and John Carpenter, Linden, had the lowest somatic cell count with 171,000.

The highest milk producing cow in the county was "Devil," owned by Bosch Farms, Muncy. She produced 35,542-pounds of milk. "Bettina," owned by Jay and Linda Kreider, Trout Run, produced 1,311-pounds of butterfat. "Spirit," owned by Bosch Farms, produced 1,130-pounds of protein.

High herd awards were presented to DHIA members by the Lycoming County DHIA technicians to Carol Jordan, Unityville, and Tom Finan, New Albany.

Nathan Jarrett, Montgomery, a member of the Bald Eagle 4-H Club, received awards for having eight cows completing lactations during the year with his 4-H dairy cows.

The program included Scott Kriebel, Benton, state DHIA director; Linda Sticklin, Wellsboro, regional DHIA manager; and Dean Amick, State College, director of field services, Pennsylvania state DHIA.

Elected directors for a three-year term were Chuck Kindlimann, Trout Run, and Kevin Stahlnecker, Cogan Station. Elected as officers were president, Chuck Kindlimann, vice president, Kevin Stahlnecker, and secretary, Charles Carpenter, Linden.

Cornell Ag & Food Tech Park Slated For $645,000 In New Budget

GENEVA, N.Y. — "Congressman Reynolds' support of $645,000 for the Cornell Agriculture and Food Technology Park in the 2001 VA/HUD budget is exciting news," said James E. Hunter, Director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, in Geneva, NY. "These funds will help support planning and construction of the initial infrastructure of the park. That includes water, sewage, roads, utilities and an in-depth Environmental Impact Statement. Depending on our success in securing additional funds, a portion of this money may be used for actual construction of the first incubator research building."

Hunter's comments were in response to U.S. Representative Thomas M. Reynolds' (R-NY27) announcement at a press conference at the Experiment Station that he has secured $645,000 in funding for the project in a new federal budget. Reynolds, who said the funding will be used for infrastructure needs, had the funding included in the fiscal year 2001 VA/HUD budget that is expected to be approved by the House of Representatives later this week.

"This is an ambitious project that will make the area a world leader in horticultural, biotech and food science research," Reynolds said. "Just as important, it's a major economic development initiative that will help create hundreds of new jobs in our commuinity."

It's estimated that as many as 150 full-time employees can be on staff within three years of the park's completion, said Reynolds. In addition, more than 140 contracting entites are expect to use the park.

"With a continued, strong partnership of federal, state and local governments, academic and the private sector, the Geneva Station has tremendous potential for great success," he said. "And once it's up and running, will have an incredible impact on the residents of Ontario County."

The money will go to the Cornell Agriculture and Food Technology Park Corporation, the not-for-profit corporation that has just been formed for the planning, management and development of the park.

New York State Senator Michael Nozzolio has been working to provide state assistance for the project praised Reynolds' efforts to secure the federal funding. "This needed funding will provide the kind of momentum we need to keep this project moving forward," Nozzolio said. "And I'm grateful for Congressman Reynolds' leadership in garnering $645,000 in federal support."

"This is the first large-scale grant that will begin to make this project reality," said Rich Rising, Geneva City Manager. "It is a crucial project for economic development in the city and takes advantage of the extraordinary technology at the Experiment Station to create jobs and further Geneva's economic revitalization."

"As of yet, we do not have any firm commitments from potential tenants," said Michael Manikowski, Executive Director of the Ontario County Industrial Development Agency, one of the park's partner agencies. "However, our preliminary marketing study showed tremendous interest from private companies wanting to position themselves near the Station, in the park."

Hunter and others in Geneva believe the park is needed to help ensure the long-term viability of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station as a world leader in research related to agriculture, food science, and biotechnology. The park will also enable the station to continue to attract and retain outstanding scientists and provide a stimulating and creative research environment that will lead to benefits for agriculture, food and biotechnology businesses in New York.

State legislation must be approved to convey land with a long-term lease from the State University of New York (SUNY) to the recently formed corporation to develop and manage the park. Enabling legislation passed the NY State Senate in 2000, but failed to come to a vote before the Assembly. It will be proposed again in the 2001 session. Assemblymen Edward Sullivan (D-69th), William Magee (D-11th), Martin Luster (D-125th), and Brian Kolb (R-129th) came to the Experiment Station on a fact-finding mission about the park.

"I ended that meeting feeling that all four legislators had a better understanding of programs at the Station and the benefits of the park. I am optimistic that the bill will receive favorable support in the upcoming session of the Legislature," said Hunter.

Companies in the park will carry out research in agriculture, food and biotechnology that complements the research and extension programs of Cornell's 800-acre Experiment Station. The proposed 78-acre research park adjacent to the Station will provide incubator space for entrepreneurs, multi-tenant buildings for small companies, and land for well-established companies to build their own research buildings. In addition to the basic infrastructure, the proposed facilities for the park include a $2.5 million incubator research building, a $1.13 million greenhouse, and a $2.8 million multi-tenant building. Development is planned in three phases with build-out for the first two phases expected to take three years.

According to the Market Feasibility Study, many of the companies that expressed interest in locating in the park were food companies. It is not a production facility, however. "Successful products may be developed at the park, but would need to move to their own larger production facilities," said Hunter.

The Ag & Food Tech Park was initially proposed in the Station Master Plan in 1995 and endorsed by the City of Geneva's Master Plan in 1997. A project feasibility study and a preliminary environmental assessment of the Park site were completed in 1998; the Market Study and Business Pan completed in 1999.

MILK. IT DOES A BODY GOOD.™

attributed these profound gradients in nutrient levels to higher rates of manure and urine deposition closer to the watering locations. The Missouri researchers also noted a greater gradient toward water in paddocks that were long and narrow. This could be because of the length:width ratio itself or to the distance cattle were required to travel to reach water.

The concern with this gradient of nutrients toward water is two-fold. First, an environmental problem can develop at watering sites. Second, the nutrients building up at the watering site are being pulled from the bulk of the pasture area. Thus, the majority of the pasture becomes depleted of these nutrients.

Pasture systems requiring that animals travel a lane to access water results in a loss of extretal nutrients off of pasture. At the experimental scale, losses have averaged about 15 percent and as high as 25 percent during the hottest part of the summer. At a commercial scale, manure loss off of pasture areas is likely at least this large, if not larger. The significance of this is that lanes that access water often do not provide much if any forage. Thus, the manure dropped in the lane not only represents a loss of nutrients off of pasture, but also a potential environmental problem.

Shade is a primary location for livestock camping and loafing, especially during hot, sunny days. However, cattle are often observed to camp under shade trees even during cloudy and/or cool days. Time spent camping under shade results in accumulation of manure and urine, and thus P and K, at the shade source. Missouri researchers found that the gradient of P and K concentration toward a single shade tree increased more sharply and to a greater extent than that toward the watering site (Figure 1).

Endophyte-infected fescue plays a role here, too. The gradient toward shade trees is even worse on endophyte-infected fescue pasture since cattle are more attracted to shade when stressed.

The need for shade on pasture for optimization of livestock comfort and performance is a somewhat controversial subject. In Pennsylvania, there are probably several days during the summer when beef cattle "need" shade, and several weeks when dairy cattle "need" shade. Thus, it is probably a good plan to have shade available in a few paddocks. However, for most of the paddocks on the farm, unless shade is movable or fairly uniformly distributed throughout the paddock, it is probably best not to intentionally provide shade. In fact, consider removing/or fencing off shade trees in most paddocks in order to negate the powerful influence they have on animal behavior and thus the uniformity of excretal return.

Topography also influences patterns of excretal return. Both sheep and cattle tend to prefer the highest ground available to them to camp, especially during wet or warm weather. The tendency for higher ground to be drier and have greater exposure to cooling breezes is probably the reason for this. Research has documented greater manure deposition by both sheep and cattle on higher ground within paddocks.

How can a grazier improve the uniformity of manure deposition and thus take advantage of manure's tremendous fertilizer value?

Rotational stocking is an effective tool to improve the uniformity of distribution of livestock excreta. Research in New Zealand, the U.K. and the U.S. has documented that increased stocking densities improve uniformity of excretal return by both cattle and sheep.

Stocking density is the number of animals present per unit land area at a given point in time. Since rotational stocking involves the subdivision of larger land areas into smaller subunits, stocking densities are inherently increased. Also, rotational stocking "forces" animals to spend roughly equal amounts of time on the entire pasture system area by eliminating their ability to maintain permanent camping and loafing sites.

In one experiment with sheep in Australia, rotational stocking reduced the percentage of manure deposition on one percent of the pasture area of 24 percent to six percent. A decrease from 46 percent to 32 percent was observed on 10 percent of the area.

Farming Forecast

A soaking rainfall will surge across the state Sunday into Monday morning. There can be flooding in areas of poor drainage with over an inch of rain possible across the area. After some leftover rain and drizzle Monday morning the clouds may break for some sunshine. Expect a mixture of clouds and sunshine on Tuesday, but it should remain mild with highs not far from 50 degrees.

Hostess Gifts From The Heart

LOU ANN GOOD

Stymied about what to give as hostess gifts?

Today's collection of ideas are from Fay Strickler, Ruth Armbuster, and Barbara Mills. They recently presented the ideas during the holiday workshop conducted at the Berks County Extension.

Clip these pages. The ideas are sure to spark your creativity and warm the hearts of the receivers.

Ideas for hostess and holiday gifts abound according to these workshop instructors at the Berks County Holiday Program. From left are Fay Strickler, Ruth Armbuster, and Barbara Mills.

Homemade Gift Ideas

• Fuse a fabric applique to a paper bag to package a gift.

• Napkin holders — Glue or stitch items such as buttons, holiday ornaments, and silk flowers to napkin holders.

• Rosemary or sage basting brushes — Tie three long sprigs rosemary together with red and gold cord. Give to the one who roasts the Christmas goose or turkey. You can also tie together a set of wooden spoons and add a tiny jar of dried sage, thyme, and rosemary.

• Flavored vinegars — Basil, bay leaves, marjoram, oregano, rosemary, sage, tarragon, and thyme are excellent choices for flavoring vinegar and oil. Use them singularly or in any combination desired. Add a bit of mint to other herbs for flavor.

• Flavored coffee — To unflavored ground coffee, add ⅛-¼ teaspoon ground cardamom and ¼-½ teaspoon ground cinnamon per pot. Brew the coffee as usual. (Add a coffee mug and cookies or biscotti for a special touch).

• Stencil aprons with Christmas motifs.

HOT AND SWEET MUSTARD

1 cup sugar
⅔ cup dry mustard
3 eggs, well beaten
⅔ cup vinegar

In a medium saucepan, whisk together sugar and mustard. Add eggs and vinegar, blend well. Cook over low heat (stirring constantly), until thickened (approximately 8-10 minutes).

Pour into two 1-cup canning jars and cap with lid and screwband. Refrigerate for up to one month.

For an evening get-together with friends, take a decorated jar of homemade hot and sweet mustard, ring bologna, and hard pretzels for dipping.

LEMON BUTTER OR LEMON CURD

Blend:
2 cups sugar
5 eggs, well beaten
Add:
2 lemons (grate rind first, then juice the fruit)
3 tablespoons butter

Cook in the top pan of double boiler, over low heat, stirring constantly. Keep the water in the bottom half of the double boiler at just under boiling temperature. Cook until it thickens, about 25 minutes.

Pour into half pint canning jars and cover with lid and band. Cool. Refrigerate for up to one month. Can be frozen. Tastes great on blueberry muffins, fruit breads, warm bagels, rolls, or as a fruit dip.

RASPBERRY VINEGAR

Bruise one cup fresh raspberries lightly and place in sterilized pint jar. Heat distilled white or wine vinegar to just below boiling point. Fill jar with vinegar and cap tightly. Allow to stand 2-3 weeks. Strain vinegar, discarding fruit. Pour vinegar into a clean sterilized jar. Seal tightly. Use in dressings for mixed green or fruit salads or marinades for children.

LEMON THYME VINEGAR

Remove peel (colored portion only) from one lemon in a thin spiral and place in a sterilized pint jar with 4-5 sprigs thyme or lemon thyme. Heat distilled white vinegar to just below the boiling point. Fill jar with vinegar and cap tightly. Allow to stand 3-4 weeks. Strain vinegar, discarding peel and thyme. Pour vinegar into a clean sterilized jar, adding fresh thyme sprig and peel for garnish. Seal tightly. Use in dressings for tossed green salads or marinades for vegetables.

BLACK BEAN FIESTA SALSA

Vegetables:
2 (15.5 ounces) cans black beans, drained, rinsed
1 cup frozen corn, rinsed under warm water until thawed
½ pound jicama, peeled, diced in small pieces
1 sweet red pepper, remove seeds, dice
5 whole green onions, cleaned, chopped
2 fresh tomatoes, diced
2 teaspoons minced garlic (refrigerated or fresh)
½ or whole bunch fresh cilantro, finely chopped
Dressing:
½ cup lemon juice (fresh or bottled)
¼ cup lime juice (fresh or bottled)
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons olive oil

Combine vegetables in 2-quart bowl. Measure dressing ingredients into pint jar, cover and shake until sugar is dissolved. Add dressing to vegetables and stir thoroughly. Marinate in refrigerator overnight or at least 2 hours to blend flavors.

Serve with slotted spoon as a condiment with chips, tacos, fajitas or as a salad. Salsa may be refrigerated up to two weeks.

Jicama is a root vegetable similar to potatoes. It can be found in large supermarkets. If desired, water chestnuts may be substituted for jicama. Yields approximately 7-8 cups.

This is a prize-winning recipe.

JELLY JAR SCENT

1 cup simmering potpourri
2 packages unflavored gelatin
1 jelly jar with screw lid
1 piece of lace or ribbon

Take 1 cup liquid potpourri and warm on range. Add gelatin and stir until it dissolves. Don't let it get too hot or let boil. Pour into jar, put lid on and refrigerate for at least two hours. When set, decorate with lace and ribbon. To use, take off disc from lid and put lace over top of jar and tighten the lid to keep lace in place.

WIDOW FINNEY'S SWEET AND TANGY NUTS

1 pound pecans
3 egg whites
Dash salt
1 cup sugar
1 cup butter
Splash soy sauce

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Toast pecans in oven until lightly browned. Beat egg whites in a medium bowl until foamy. Add salt, and then gradually add sugar, continuing to beat until stiff peaks form. Fold in nuts. Melt butter in bottom of sheet cake pan, add soy sauce, and spread nut mixture over top. Bake about 20 minutes, stirring nuts every 10 minutes. Cool nuts and break into pieces before serving.

BEAN SOUP JAR

2 cups mixed dried beans

On a recipe card, include the following information for preparing soup:

2 quarts water
1-2 pounds ham hock
½ teaspoon salt
28-ounce can stewed tomatoes
1 large onion, chopped
Seasoning to taste

Rinse beans; soak in two quarts water overnight. Do not drain. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and cook slowly, uncovered, until beans are tender and soup thickens. Makes 8 cups.

To make diet cocoa, delete sugar and add eight packages Equal. For mocha, add ½ cup instant coffee crystals.

PUPPY CHOW
(For humans)

1 cup peanut butter
1 stick butter
2 cups chocolate chips

Combine peanut butter, butter, and chocolate chips. Melt in microwave. Toss mixture until covered with 18 cups Chex cereal

Then toss with

3 cups confectioners' sugar

SCISSORS HOLDER

7-inch square potholder
2½-inch fabric yo-yo
Large button
8-inch scissors

With hanging loop at top, fold two side corners of potholders toward center, forming a cornucopia. Stitch or glue in place.

For yo-yo, cut 5¼-inch circle from fabric. Press raw edge of circle ¼-inch to the wrong side. Using heavy thread, work loose running stitches along pressed edge. Pull ends of thread to tightly gather the circle, knot thread to secure. Flatten circle with gathers at top center. Glue flat side of yo-yo to potholder cornucopia; glue a button to center of gathers on yo-yo. Insert scissors.

SEASONING FOR SOUPS, STEWS, SALADS

½ teaspoon dry mint
1 teaspoon dry basil
¼ teaspoon dry dill weed
½ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon black pepper

CREOLE SEASONING MIX

¼ teaspoon lemon peel
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon celery salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
⅛ teaspoon ground ginger
1¼ teaspoons paprika
¼ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon red pepper

Mix together all ingredients. Package in a clear cellophane bag and tie with ribbon or in small tin. Add as a seasoning to meats, poultry or soup mix. This is a spicy seasoning so start with a small amount and adjust taste.

SNACK MIX GIFT

11-14-ounce box flat oyster crackers
1 scant cup salad oil
1 package ranch salad dressing mix
Dash lemon pepper seasoning (without salt)
Dash garlic powder
¼ teaspoon dill weed

Mix oil and seasonings in large bowl. Stir in crackers. Stir occasionally during the day. Let set overnight. Next day store in airtight containers. Tall plastic containers are right for storing this appetizer.

Give A Themed Gift Basket

Here's a perfect idea for those hard-to-shop for friends and family: a gift basket filled with items customized to the recipient's needs and interests.

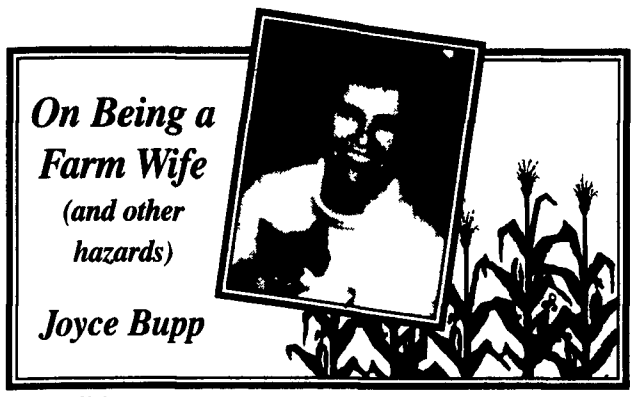
A Breakfast Basket might contain cranberry bread or assorted muffins, gourmet preserves, a special coffee or tea, and book of short stories. For heartier appetites, consider pancake mix, and speciality syrups.

A Soup Supper with dried soup and bean mixes, fancy crackers, cornbread mix, a wooden ladle, and soup cups.

For a Pasta Basket, replace the basket with a large pasta bowl filled with a cheese grater, a garlic press, fresh Parmesan cheese, checkered napkins, and, of course, gourmet pastas.

Other gift ideas include baskets customized for tea drinkers, coffee lovers, choc-a-holics, gourmet cooks or late night snackers.

If the recipient is moving to a new home or apartment, a cleaning basket stocked with sponges, rubber gloves, and assorted cleaning products would be welcome. To make it extra-special, tuck in a gift certificate for a cleaning service.



Tradition.

It's the watchword of the season.

On one side of this season, we have the leftovers of Thursday's turkey, with the residual cold turkey sandwiches, hot turkey sandwiches, turkey soup, turkey pot-pie, turkey salad, turkey etc. Our 16-pounder was a freebie — a "thank you" from the supermarket chain where I drop the bulk of my food-shopping dollars — for which we are most appreciative. It continues to provide tasty fodder for us traditional holiday-roast bird lovers.

On the other side of this season comes Christmas card lists demanding our attention, challenges to find just the right gift for those special loves ones, extra goodies to prepare and the Norfolk Island pine to lug in from the greenhouse to plunk into our living room for our instant, fresh, and live, holiday tree. The grandkids will enjoy decorating it.

But before we can hang our first cow tree ornament, we have to deal with yet another tradition which hangs over our heads like mistletoe in the doorframe of annual events.

Deer hunting.

As a child, I was well aware when deer hunting season was approaching. Dad would get out the rifle he rarely touched any other time of the year and spend an afternoon or two "shooting it in."

I vaguely recall the year someone noted to a guest who stopped by that dad was "out shooting mark." (Since I have a brother named Mark, that got a quick, laughing clarification).

Dad would also start accumulating days ahead the food and non-perishables he planned to take along, packing them in brown paper grocery bags. Though he passed away a few years ago, memories of Dad's paper bag packing always make me smile as hunting season approaches.

Though The Farmer is a hunter, the daily demands of dairy cows — and often with corn still standing in the fields — have always discouraged lengthy stays away stalking white-tails. Still, he tries to manage at least a day or two each year at the Lycoming County hunting camp to which four generations of family have belonged since it was built in the early 1940s.

In my opinion, few things smack more of tradition than deer camp. At least from my second-hand vantage point. Certain members of the group traditionally assume certain leadership responsibilities, going early to warm-up the 20-degree cabin (some years, anyway), organizing the hunt, assigning teams and positions during deer drives, deciding which group plays the evening social card games at which table.

Not to forget that most crucial tradition: meals. All that battling the elements, the mountains and the deer snickering as they high-tail it over the far horizon drum up a powerful appetite, m'am. Tradition dictates that a certain menu will appear on a certain day, allowing at least for easy planning from year to year. Tradition usually also carries through the cook does not do the dishes, which seems a fair plan to me.

When you put today's reality up against tradition, however, it seems that hunters are as likely to spot white-tails hanging around farm fields as hoofing over the thick, wooded, steep terrain of mountaintops. And, who can blame those bucks? Why slip and slide your pointy little hoofs over rock outcroppings and jagged cliffs when you could snooze snugly inside a briary, woods-edge, fence row and leisurely dine in an alfalfa field 10 yards away?

Knowing full-well that, the moment his pickup leaves the farm to point north toward hunting camp, something at the barn will break (and it will probably be before or after business hours), I ponder why one would drive hours away when there are deer hanging around much closer at some of the "back forty" fields we farm.

(And it sure isn't because we're hungry. There's still that turkey lurking in the fridge.)

But even before I ask, I already know the answer.

Don't mess with tradition.

What's Going On At Child Care

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Your child will spend many hours at child care while you work. Do you know what he will be doing all day? Have you seen the play areas? Children need to play to learn. They need to be safe. Outdoor play is important. Make sure the program has safe areas for outside activities on cool fall and winter days. See if the activities are right for your child.

Children need active play. They need large spaces to run, jump, and climb inside and outside. There should always be enough adult supervision. Play equipment needs to be in good shape and anchored to the ground. Make sure there are no sharp edges. See if there is cushioning material under climbing and swinging equipment.

Toys and play equipment can be simple, but should be right for the ages of the children. Basic things like blocks, puzzles, art materials, and lots of books are needed for children. Broken toys need to be thrown away. Art materials, such as paint, markers, and crayons, should be non-toxic.

Toys should be cleaned and disinfected regularly to keep germs away. This is even more important for items used by babies and toddlers, who are always putting things in their mouths. Cleaning toys can prevent colds from spreading.

Your child's caregiver can get information and ideas from free educational materials that can be ordered by calling 1-800-452-9108, the Penn State Cooperative Extension Better Kid Care Program.

There is information for caregivers and parents on the Better Kid Care Web site on the Internet. Go to www.betterkidcare.psu.edu to find out what is available.

Don't Leave Safety Up In The Air When Hunting From Tree Stands

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.— In an effort to outsmart the elusive whitetailed deer, more and more Pennsylvania hunters are taking to the trees to bag their quarry.

"Hunters can climb existing limbs or use ladders, steps or commercial climbers to reach perches 10 to 15 feet off the forest floor," explains Earle Robbins, Tioga County extension director for Penn State Cooperative Extension and a certified hunting safety instructor. "Tree stands have been very popular with hunters in archery season, and now more hunters are using them during rifle season."

Hunting from tree stands can be more productive, but using them can be dangerous. Nationwide, about 10 hunters every year are killed in falls from tree stands, while many others suffer temporary or permanent injury.

"Human error is the main reason for tree stand accidents," Robbins says. "People climb into trees or stands when conditions are wet, icy or windy. They also fall asleep and fall out of the tree or become excited when a deer appears and take one step too far."

Robbins recommends following these safety tips when using tree stands:

- Do not use weathered, homemade tree stands. These stands often deteriorate quickly and often are unsafe even when newly installed.
- Wear a safety belt or harness. These products fit under both arms and are attached to the tree and the hunter. If the stand breaks or slips, the hunter remains in position.
- Always unload firearms before pulling them up into (or lowering them from) the tree stand.
- Choose an obviously healthy tree with branches that can support the additional weight. Make sure the tree has no dead branches or fungal growths nearby or on the trunk. Mushrooms or fungi on trees can be a sign of ill health.
- When climbing up or down, always ensure that your hands and feet are secure at three points of contact before moving the fourth point.
- Closely follow manufacturer's directions when using commercial tree stands.

Robbins warns hunters that they cannot place a tree stand in any tree of their choice. They must ask the owner first.

"There is a $100 fine plus damage costs for placing a tree stand on public or private property without permission," Robbins said.

Consuming Thoughts

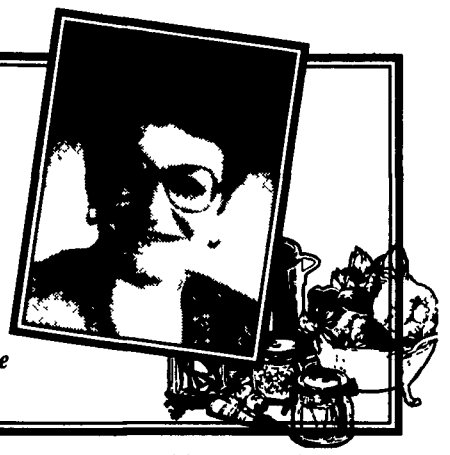
Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Our appetite for different foods is growing as ethnic cuisines take their place beside more traditional American fare. The food guide pyramid recommends that we increase the amount of cereal, grains, fruit and vegetables in our diets and decrease sources of fat and cholesterol. This is easily done when you include foods and preparation methods from countries where this style of eating is a way of life.

Try ethnic restaurant, delis or take-out counters to get acquainted with unfamiliar cuisines. Here they are likely to be prepared and served in a traditional manner with the proper balance of seasoning and texture and with an authentic finished appearance.

To recreate many of these dishes, look for ethnic ingredients and prepared foods in the supermarket. Many markets now carry a wide variety of soups, pastas, spreads, breads, and grains as well as prepared foods like hummus (spread of chickpeas with sesame paste) and baba ghanoush (seasoned and mashed eggplant spread) in the refrigerated section. Also, check health food stores for unusual grains and flours as well as unusual nuts, seed and dried fruits. The recipes you need may be on the food packages themselves or in regional cookbooks carried in many bookstores and libraries. Introduce your family to foods from other parts of the world with the following recipes.

Cuban Black Bean Dip

15-ounce can black beans, drained and rinsed under cold water
2 teaspoons plain non-fat yogurt
1 clove garlic, crushed or 1 teaspoon garlic powder

Place rinsed black beans in bowl and mashed to a thick puree with a fork. Add remaining ingredients and mix until smooth and uniform. Serve with pita bread or whole-wheat crackers.

Note: If dip is too thick, add more yogurt. Variation: add ½ small green hot chili pepper, seeded and minced and/or 1 teaspoon finely chopped onion.

Egg Drop Soup (Asian)

6 cups clear chicken broth
2 eggs
2 scallions or small bunch parsley

Pour chicken broth into deep kettle and bring broth to a boil. Scramble eggs in a bowl with a fork and slowly pour eggs into the boiling broth, stirring slowly with chopsticks. Ladle soup into bowls and garnish with sliced scallions or chopped parsley.

Quesadillas (Mexico)

1 dozen flour tortillas
1-pound cheddar or Monterey Jack cheese, grated

Warm tortillas on a griddle or electric fry pan to soften. Place cheese on half the tortilla, fold over and return to the griddle. Toast on one side, then turn over to toast the other side long enough to melt the cheese. When cheese is melted, remove from the grill, cut into quarters and serve. Quesadillas may be sprinkled with a little sugar if a sweet taste is desired.

Sauteed Plantains

2 plantains
1 tablespoon margarine or oil

Peel plantains and cut into ½" slices. Melt margarine over medium heat and add sliced plantain. Saute over medium heat until tender and lightly browned, turning once. Serve warm.

ADADC Milks Back-To-School-Time Publicity Opportunities

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Back to school time offers many opportunities to spread the good news about the health benefits of dairy products. To provide parents and kids with new, creative ideas for snacks and lunches, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc. (ADADC) arranged for Keith Ayoob, New York City area MS, RD and spokesman for American Dietetic Association, to show viewers of News 12 Westchester some of the very latest products in the dairy case, such as flavored milks, yogurts, and cheese. ADADC also arranged for similar placements on WBRE-TV, in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, and on News 12 New Jersey.

To generate additional publicity for back to school time, ADADC surveyed key health professionals throughout New York and New Jersey for their top tips for snacks and lunches, then arranged these ideas in a press release called "Healthy Snacking from A-Z."

Suggestions included "Average three cups of milk a day, chocolate or strawberry is okay," "Cereal and milk all the way to give a perfect boost to your day," Forget spoons, use wedges of apples, pears, or pineapple to scoop yogurt from a cup," and "Give a green salad pizzazz by adding lowfat cheese, such as feta or shredded part-skim mozzarella."

Breaking Bread

Bread is an excellent source of energy.

Contrary to persistent myth that bread if fattening, it is actually a weight management tool according to the Wheat Foods Council. Bread gets the marjority of its calories from complex carbohydrates, which gram for gram, have less than half the calories of fat. Because bread is rich in complex carbohydrates, it's your body's best source of energy for a long-term boost.

Research indicates that carbohydrates in the diet help satisfy appetite, and that starchy foods such as bread have a greater influence on satiety or a feeling of "fulness" than do simple sugars such as candy.

Studies show that stress stimulates the breakdown of serotonin, a chemical your body uses to soothe its response to stress. Increased intake of complex carbohydrate-rich foods such as bread and grains may help replenish serotonin levels, and therefore, increase your body's comforting response.

An average slice of packaged bread contains only one gram of fat, and 75-80 calories. But if you're watching your weight, don't sabotage this low-fat staple by drenching it with fatty toppings.

Bread is inexpensive, literally costing only pennies per slice. More than 1,000 varieties of bread are on the market, offering a choice for even the pickiest palates.

Breaking bread is also a universal sign of peace. At the first Thanksgiving, pilgrims broke bread with Native Americans. Carry on the tradition. Make a loaf and savor it with friends and family.

POTATO BUNS

6 potatoes, cooked, save water
¼ cup butter
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon salt

Combine:

1½ packages dry yeast
1 cup warm potato water

Add:

7 cups flour

Mash potatoes; add butter, shortening, sugar, eggs, salt, and yeast and water mixture. Slowly add flour. Let rise until double its size. Knead down and let rise again. Roll dough and cut into bite size and let rise on cookie sheets until doubled in size. Knead down and let rise again. Roll dough and cut into bun size. Let rise on cookie sheets until doubled in size. Wash top with beaten egg and bake at 300 degrees until done.

OVERNIGHT BUNS

2 packages dry yeast
2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup warm water

Mix together and let stand 10 minutes. Combine the following ingredients and stir until dissolved:

4 cups warm water
⅔ cup sugar
3 teaspoons salt
1 cup vegetable oil In a large bowl, combine the two mixtures and add
7 cups flour

7 cups flour or enough to form stiff dough

The method used to make overnight buns require mixing the dough at 6 p.m. Let rise at room temperature until 9 p.m. Punch down dough and form into ball shapes and place in baking pans. Makes 4½ dozen sandwich-size rolls or 6 dozen dinner rolls.

Cover unbaked buns with towel or cloth to prevent hard crust from forming. Let set on countertop or in cold oven overnight. In morning, remove cloth and bake at 6 a.m. at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

EZEKIEL BREAD

1 cup warm water
3 tablespoons honey or brown sugar
2 tablespoons or 2 packages yeast
1 cup hot water
1½ tablespoon salt
1 cup sprouted or soaked lentils
3 tablespoons oil
2 cups hot water
1 cup soy flour
1 cup rye flour
1 cup gluten flour
1 cup millet flour
1 cup barley flour
4 cups whole wheat bread flour

Mix warm water, 1 tablespoon honey, and yeast, and let stand until yeast is growning well. Liquidfy together: 1 cup hot water, 2 tablespoons honey, salt, lentils and oil until smooth and put in large bowl.

If no liquid is available, put lentils through food mill twice. To lentil mixture, add 2 cups hot water, and first five flours. Beat thoroughly and add yeast mixture. Beat again and add 1 cup whole wheat flour. Allow to stand in warm place 15 minutes.

Research indicates that carbohydrates in the diet help satisfy appetite, and that starchy foods such as bread have a greater influence on satiety or a feeling of "fulness" than do simple sugars such as candy.

Add about 3 cups whole wheat flour, enough to make a dough easy to handle but not too stiff. Knead 6-8 minutes. Form into loaves or rolls and put in 250-350-degree oven. Allow 15 minutes for bread to rise; increase oven temperature to 350-400 degrees, and finish baking (approximately one hour); less for rolls and small loaves. Makes 4-5 loaves.

Setting The Bread Record Straight

With the constant bombardment of misleading nutrition information, Americans are more confused than ever on what to eat for a healthy life. To get the real scoop on some of today's top nutrition concerns, read on. You'll be pleasantly surprised to find out that eating healthfully doesn't require magic potions, complicated formulas or food group eliminations — and you can feel good about enjoying more of your favorite grain-based foods.

• Is white bread a healthful snack option for my kids?

Sixty-eight percent of kids say they like white bread best, according to a nationwide kids' nutrition survey, and that's great news. With less than 1 gram of fat per slice, and packed with energy-producing complex carbohydrates, bread is ideal for snacking. Enriched white bread also is a source of folic acid, iron and B vitamins, including thiamin, niacin and riboflavin. To make sure your kids are getting enough fiber and other whole-grain contributions, mix and match white bread with whole-grain varieties.

• Why is the B vitamin, folic acid, so important?

Women of child-bearing age need folic acid. Getting adequate amounts of this essential nutrient, 400 micrograms each day, is a primary way to prevent birth defects of the spinal cord and brain. Plus, folic acid may help to protect against heart disease. As of 1998, the Food and Drug Administration requires all enriched grain foods to be fortified with folic acid — including enriched white bread, rolls, buns and flour. The good news is that recent research shows that foods enriched with folic acid have the edge over supplements in their ability to be absorbed by the body. So, go ahead — stock up on your favorite enriched grain foods for healthy babies and a healthy heart.

• I've heard that eating refined complex carbohydrates causes diabetes and will make me fat. Is this true?

There's simply no truth to these claims. The American Diabetes Association maintains that eating a healthy, well-balanced diet, which includes bread, rolls and other grain foods, being physically active and keeping weight under control are essential for boosting a person's quality of life. Although all complex carbohydrates — including bread, rice and potatoes — are converted to sugars during digestion, complex carbohydrate-rich foods contain numerous vitamins, minerals, and essential nutrients not found in simple sugars such as sugar, honey and candy. What's more, a typical slice of bread is a low-calorie fat buster with a mere 75 calories and less than 1 gram of fat.

'Tis The Season For Buying Toys

It's toy-buying time again!

Millions of parents, relatives, and friends will purchase millions of dollars worth of toys. In a few weeks these toys will be in the hands of the nation's young. Some of the toys won't stay in their hands for long. Others will become favorites and be used for years.

At this time of year it is interesting to ask why some toys are big hits and others seem to be big losers. There are two reasons. Part of the answer lies within the child since each child is a unique person, with his own likes, dislikes, interests and abilities.

It is very important to consider where the child is in his development and where he is likely to be in the very near future. For example one father gave his two-year-old daughter a very complicated doll. The little girl completely disregarded the doll once it was opened and held "once" on Christmas morning. A more appropriate gift might have been a stuffed doll that did not eat and wet.

Another family decided to buy a small indoor slide for their four-year-old son. Again, the boy was not at all interested in this rather expensive gift. The reason was simple — the past summer the boy had mastered the large slide at the park. The small slide would have been just right for an 18-month-old or even a 2½-year-old, but not a 4-year-old. The idea of matching the toy or gift with the child's level of development is often overlooked because a parent may in fact buy the toy on impulse or buy it because he or she thinks the toy is cute. Any toy should offer some challenge to the child but not be so advanced that it will take many months for the child to grow into it.

Before deciding on a toy it is helpful to sit back and watch what the child does in his play. Does he like to play make-believe using people and cars? Does she enjoy doing more quiet activities? Is she ready for a simple board game? Does a wheel toy fascinate him? Is she able to throw a ball? Can she read? Does he have books of his own? What you see your child doing should give you some hints about what kind of toys to buy.

Many catalogs and toy packages have suggested ages stated. Keep in mind that these are intended only as a guide. Each parent must choose the toy that is suited to his/her child.

Catalogs can be helpful because they are filled with ideas. Look through them and when a toy looks like a good one for your child, think about the above questions. Catalogs also give the parent a chance to make a list before hitting the store.

The other part of the original question about why some toys are big hits and others are real losers lies in the toys themselves. Any toy should be safe for the child who receives it. It is unfair and unwise to give a toy to a child that requires an adult to be present for it to be used safely. It is also unfair to give a young child a toy that requires an adult to make it work. For example, there are board games on the market that require an adult to constantly be involved in playing them so that they do not fall apart.

Look for board games intended for young children that are simple in their design. There should be few, if any, complicated parts. The child should not only be able to play the game, but also even set it up and put it away.

Any good toy is well constructed and is constructed in such a way that it will withstand many months of hard child play.

Look for flaws in the toy. Will certain parts easily come off or break? If it is made of plastic, does it appear to be strong enough to last? Are their lots of small parts that are likely to be lost?

Be careful buying fad toys or toys that are pushed hard on television. A few of these nationally advertised toys are worthwhile, but many are not. Television can make a toy appear to do much more than it can really do. One example is the annual pitch for cars or dolls that seem to be able to do amazing stunts. TV close-ups can be deceiving.

When your child gets the "super TV" car or doll, he may be very disappointed because it won't do what he thought it would do. Another thing to consider in buying toys that are part of a TV ad is that the toy is likely to pass rather quickly. We have seen this happen in recent years with toys that capitalized on the stars of movies and television programs. These toys cost much more, too.

The business of buying toys for children is one that takes a good deal of thought and planning. Begin early and make wise selections. And by all means don't overload the child with toys. A few well-planned and thoughtfully chosen toys are far better than a grocery store basket full, many of which could end up gathering dust in the basement on January 1!

Toy Suggestions

For children under 2 years:

- sturdy rattles
- brightly colored objects
- rubber or washable squeak toys
- stuffed dolls and animals
- large, soft, colored balls
- blocks with rounded corners
- push and pull toys

Children 2 to 3 years:

- sand box with bucket, shovel and spoon

QUESTION — Durwood Tuttle, Knoxville, makes sweet pickles in a crock that he stores in a cellar. About three weeks ago, a gray fuzzy mold formed all over the crock. He washed the crock thoroughly with bleach water but it doesn't keep the mold from forming again. Any help would be appreciated.

QUESTION — Rachel Musser is searching for a spaghetti sauce recipe that tastes similar to Prego pasta sauce (traditional).

ANSWER — Vera Moore, Gettysburg, requested the oatmeal muffin recipe that had been printed on the large Quaker oatmeal box about eight years ago. Thanks to a reader who went to the work of handwriting the recipe but did not include her name for credit.

Applesauce Oatmeal Muffins

1½ cups quick or old-fashioned oats, uncooked
1¼ cups all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup unsweetened applesauce
½ cup skim milk
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 egg white

Topping:
¼ cup quick or old-fashioned oats, uncooked
1 tablespoon firmly packed brown sugar
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon butter, melted

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Line 12 medium muffin cups with paper baking cups. Combine oats, flour, cinnamon, baking powder, and baking soda. Add applesauce, milk, brown sugar, oil, and egg white; mix just until dry ingredients are moistened. Fill muffin cups almost full. Combine remaining ingredients; sprinkle evenly over batter. Bake 20-22 minutes or until deep golden brown. Serve warm.

ANSWER — Thanks to Ruth Archer, Englishtown, N.J., for sending recipes for dough that is mixed, kneaded, shaped, and put into the freezer until ready to use. When you want freshly baked breads, just take the shaped doughs from the freezer and let them thaw and rise at room temperature. Then bake.

Frozen Dinner Rolls

5½ to 6½ cups unsifted flour
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
2 packages active dry yeast
1¼ cups water
½ cup milk
⅓ cup butter
2 eggs, room temperature

In large bowl, thoroughly mix 2 cups flour, sugar, salt, and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine water, milk, and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120-130 degrees). Butter does not need to melt.

Gradually add mixture to dry ingredients and beat two minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and ½ cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out lightly floured board, knead until smooth and elastic, about 8-10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap, then a towel, let rest 20 minutes. Punch dough down. Shape into desired shapes for dinner rolls. Place on greased baking sheets. Cover with plastic wrap and foil, sealing well. Freeze until firm. Transfer to plastic bags. Freeze up to 4 weeks.

Remove from freezer, place on greased baking sheets. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1½ hours.

Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until golden brown and done. Cool on wire racks.

Freezer White Bread

12½-13½ cups unsifted white bread flour
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons salt
⅔ cup instant nonfat dry milk solids
4 packages active dry yeast
¼ cup softened butter
4 cups very warm tap water (120-130 degrees)

In a large bowl, thoroughly mix 4 cups flour, sugar, salt, dry milk solids, and undissolved active dry yeast. Add butter. Gradually add tap water to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1½ cups flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. Turn onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 15 minutes. Cover with a towel; let rest 15 minutes.

Divide dough into 4 equal parts. Form each piece into a smooth round bowl. Flattened each ball into a mound six inches in diameter. Place on greased baking sheets. Cover with plastic wrap. Freeze until firm. Transfer to plastic bags. Freeze up to four weeks.

Remove from freezer, place on ungreased baking sheets. Cover; let stand at room temperature until fully thawed, about 4 hours. Roll each ball to 12x8-inches. Shape into loaves. Place in greased 8½x4½x2½-inch loaf pans.

Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1½ hours.

Bake at 350 degrees about 35 minutes, or until done.

Remove from pans and cool on wire racks.

To make round loaves: let thawed dough rise on ungreased baking sheets until doubled, about one hour. Bake as for loaves.

ANSWER — A long time reader requested a recipe for maple walnut fudge. Thanks to Josephine Matenus, Dallas, for sending a recipe.

Maple Walnut Fudge

2 tablespoons butter
⅔ cups undiluted evaporated milk
1½ cups granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups mini marshmallows
2 cups white morsels
½ cup chopped walnuts
1½ teaspoons maple flavoring
50 walnut halves or pieces, approximately

Combine butter, evaporated milk, sugar, and salt in medium, heavy saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil for 4½ to 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in marshmallows, morsels, nuts, and maple flavoring. Stir vigorously for one minute or until marshmallows are melted. Pour into foil-lined 13x9-inch baking pan. Place walnut halves in rows, spacing about ½-inch apart on top of fudge. Press into fudge. Chill until firm. Cut into squares with one walnut half per square.

ANSWER — June Berger, Annville, wanted a recipe for crumb buns, which tastes similar to that sold at Mary Jane's Baked Goods, Root's Market. Thanks to Ruth Archer, Englishtown, N.J., who sent a recipe, which is called crumb cake instead of crumb buns.

Crumb Cake

5½-6½ cups unsifted flour
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3 packages active dry yeast
½ cup softened butter
1 cup very warm tap water
3 eggs, room temperature
Melted butter

Crumb topping — blend together:
¾ cup unsifted flour
⅓ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
6 tablespoons butter, just until mixture is crumbly

In a large bowl, thoroughly mix 1¼ cups flour, sugar, salt, and undissolved active dry yeast. Add butter.

Gradually add tap water to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and ¼ cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8-10 minutes.

Divide dough into three equal pieces. Roll one piece to 8-inch square. Press into a greased 8-inch square baking pan. Brush with melted butter. Sprinkle with ⅓ of the crumb topping. Cover pan tightly with plastic wrap, then with aluminum foil; place in freezer. Repeat with remaining dough and topping. Keep frozen up to six weeks.

Remove from freezer. Let stand, covered with plastic wrap at room temperature until fully thawed, about 3½ hours. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until more than doubled in bulk, about 1½ hours.

Bake at 375 about 25 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking pans and cool on wire racks. If desired, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

BEEF. IT'S WHAT'S FOR DINNER.

Marietta Holiday House Tour With A Difference

Marietta is celebrating its Millennium Christmas Candlelight Tour of Homes this year on Sunday, Dec. 3. It promises to be extra special this year in a town that is proud of its difference.

For one thing, it is an Historic Tour. More than 50 percent of the town is in a National Historic District. The tour was conceived in 1962 as a way of showcasing the town's preservation efforts and continues to highlight the diversity of architectural styles and eras. From stately Federals to quaint Victorians, from brick row homes and humble log cabins to grand stone mansions, Marietta is a feast for the eyes.

The history continues inside the homes with antique furnishings and family heirlooms. It is seen in the public buildings on display, especially the Old Town Hall Museum, where Marietta's past as a 19th century industrial town is presented, and in the Borough Hall, restored to its former glory with the original town benches. Other public buildings are open to mark the town's civic pride, as well as the UCC Church which celebrates the Millennium with its 100th anniversary.

Another difference is that Marietta's Tour is a walking tour. Visitors can stroll from one site to the next, enjoying the decorations throughout the town without driving miles to the next house. A free shuttle bus is available, but the tour is concentrated within a reasonable walking distance.

Marietta Restoration Associates, which sponsors the tour, also sponsors an Annual House Decorating Contest. Residents get involved in the spirit of times past as they decorate outside for visitors. Tourgoers will note the ribbons on the winning homes as they listen to strolling Victorian Carolers along the way.

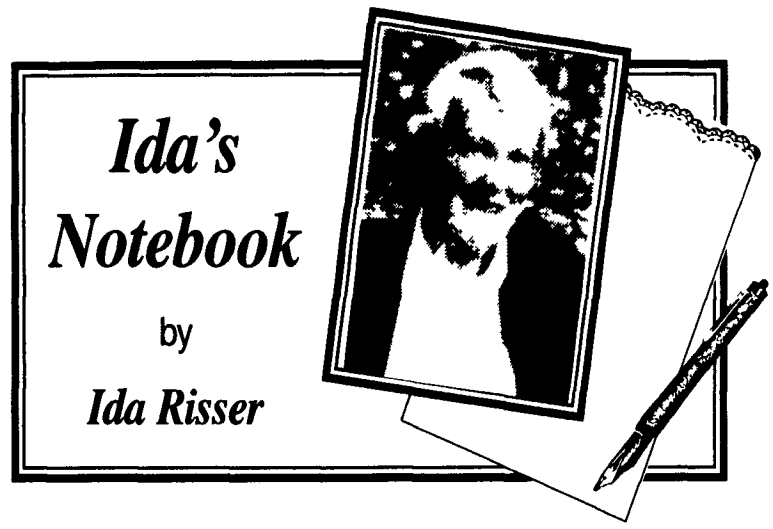
That leads to the next difference — The Marietta Tour offers a personal glimpse of holiday decorations, furnishings, and restoration efforts of individual home owners. These individuals are willing to share their decorating ideas and restoration tips with tourgoers.

The Antiques Show and Sale delights visitors with a wide array of collectibles.

The Community House offers a Millennium display of the lumber industry with guest speakers whose family ancestors were prominent in this area, when lumber floated down the Susquehanna River to rest on Marietta's shores.

Many visitors stay all day — from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. All events are open to tourgoers for the price of their ticket — $10 in advance, $12 the day of the tour.

For more information, call (717) 426-3056 or (717) 426-1229, or write MRA, P.O. Box 3, Marietta, Pa. 17547. Parking and tickets are available the day of the tour at Donegal Middle School and Riverview Elementary School.



You will be reading this two days after Thanksgiving, but I am writing it 10 days before Thanksgiving on a dismal rainy morning. So, I really don't know how that particular weekend will turn out.

I am preparing for 20 members of our family. I've bought a 22-pound turkey and hope it will fit in my blue agate roasting pan. We had to get extra boards from storage for the oval, oak table and the rectangular walnut one. More chairs had to be brought down our pull-down stairs and up from our recreation room. It might take two white tablecloths to cover the elongated oak table.

Several of our children have offered to bring some food. I'll have the turkey, pumpkin pies, lots of mashed potatoes and three vegetables to make. At least my house is in order as I had my Bible Study group meet here last week. There again I had to put extra chairs in the living room. Many members say their homes are too small for our group to meet in them.

We had a large group gather at our church for a pot luck supper recently. It seems that food is one way to get a good attendance at a meeting. Different people are known for a particular dish. My friends usually ask if I've brought my baked corn. The recipe is from an old cookbook that is falling apart. No wonder, as it was a wedding present from more than 50 years ago.

Many people from our area and beyond enjoy a monthly travelogue with us at Lititz. The Rotary Club has been sponsoring this entertainment for 38 years. It is a way to travel all over the world without getting a passport. Many retirement communities take advantage of the films and bus their residents to Lititz.

The Value Of History Has Never Been This Clear.

Stitch Homespun Tablecloths, Napkins

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

READING (Berks Co.) — Homespun fabric is the perfect solution to attractive and long-lasting tablecloth and napkins. Homespun fabric also blends in well with farm kitchens and country decor.

Homespun is an easy-to-care-for, 100 percent cotton fabric that is color fast, machine washable, and reversible for double wear, and never needs ironing. It is a thick, soft fabric.

One drawback: Homespun is not preshrunk and will shrink considerably if dried in a dryer. However, the laundering process enhances the appeal of the fabric.

When you launder homespun, wash in cold water (gentle cycle) using a mild detergent. Detergents must be totally dissolved and diluted in washing machine filled with cold water before adding fabric.

Homespun is available in large fabric stores or direct from the mills at Homespun Weavers, 55 S. Seventh St., Emmaus, PA 18049.

At the Berks County Extension holiday program held last week in Reading, Barbara Mills showed the audience how to prepare the cloth and fringe the cloth.

Sewing Fringe Onto A Round Or Oval Cloth

- Place the backside of the fringe to the backside of the cloth.
- Match up the raw edge of the cloth with the top of the fringe.
- Sew a first row of stitching approximately ½-inch from the top of the fringe, all the way around the cloth.
- Turn the cloth right side up; laying back the top of the fringe.
- Sew along the top edge of the fringe, enclosing the raw edge to form your hem.
- Overlap the ends of the fringe and stitch them together.
- Trim any cloth threads that peak out from underneath the fringe.

Finishing Instruction For Square And Rectangular Cloths

To fringe 52-inch and 62-wide cloths homespun fabric comes with a woven-on side fringe, held in place by a 10-thread false selvage.

- Snip one or two of the outermost threads of the false selvage, and the selvage will easily pull away.
- Measure 1-½-inches in from the cut edge, and sew a stay stitch across the cloth.
- Remove the threads up to the stitching. Your fringed homespun tablecloth is now complete.

Fringe a 72-Inch Rectangular Cloth

- Sew a stay stitch 1-½-inch from all four edges.
- Remove the threads up to the stitching. Your fringed homespun tablecloth is now complete.

Make Placements And Napkins

- Cut homespun to desired size. Placemats are typically 14-inches by 18-inches: napkins, usually 18-inches by 18-inches.
- Sew a stay stitch ½-inch from the edge of the cloth.
- Remove the threads up to the stitching.

Round And Oval Cloths

To cut a round cloth:

- Start with a square piece of fabric; fold in half and then in half again into a square one-quarter its original size.
- Measure and cut a piece of string the length of one side of this square.
- Attach the string to the end of a soft pencil or piece of chalk.
- Hold the opposite end of the string securely at the folded center of the cloth, and draw an arc between the two other straight folded edges.
- Cut along the arc you've drawn, through the four thicknesses of cloth, and you will have cut a perfect circle.

Self-Fringing A Round Or Oval Cloth

- Using the cut edge as a guide, sew a stay stitch all the way around the cloth, 1-½-inches from the edge.
- Begin fringing by removing threads at top, bottom and both sides to the depth of the stay stitching. This sets the depth of the fringe. All remaining threads are on the bias, and will become part of the fringe. None should be removed.
- Using a pointed instrument such as a nut pick (we don't recommend using a scissors), carefully unweave the fabric to the depth of the stay stitching on the remaining four corners until the fringe is complete.
- Bias released threads will be longer than the side fringed threads. So, trim the uneven threads using side threads as your guide for length.

'God Took Care Of Us,' Fisher Family Recalls With Thanksgiving

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Thanksgiving took on a whole new perspective for the Fisher family of Lebanon this year.

It was the first Thanksgiving they celebrated with their energetic 20-month-old daughter Katelyn.

Last year at this time, Katelyn was in China — a baby who had been abandoned when she was about five months old.

"We don't know how old she really is or any details about her birth. The doctor assigned a birth date based on a medical examination," Susan said.

Katelyn's plight is not unusual in China, where the government penalizes urban women for giving birth to more than one child. In accordance with the culture, a boy is desired because he will provide for the family when he grows up. Whereas girls marry into other families.

Generally baby girls are abandoned at birth.

"It's unusual that her mother waited until she was five months old to place her on the steps of an orphanage. I'd like to believe that her mother kept her a few months to give her a better start," Susan said. "In reality, I suspect that she kept her until she became pregnant again and gave her away before authorities found out."

Whatever the reason, Susan, her husband Terry, and 7-year-old daughter Tara, are delighted to claim Katelyn as part of their family.

Terry and Susan Fisher with daughter Tara, 7, recall traveling to China to adopt Katelyn, who had been abandoned on the steps of an orphanage.

Tara, their natural-born daughter after a difficult pregnancy, is said to have prayed fervently for a baby sister. About this time, Susan said, "It seemed that lots of people who had adopted Asian children kept appearing in our lives."

The Fishers decided to pursue a foreign adoption.

Fifteen months elapsed from the first meeting the Fishers attended at Bethany Children's Services until they held Katelyn in their arms. After the introductory meeting, stacks of paper work, finger printing, interviewing, attaining passports and visa, and attaining a house study approval, the Fishers traveled with a group of 30 other U.S. parents to China.

"We were bouncing off walls," Susan said of the family's emotional response. "She was so cute, and very social."

Katelyn was dressed in an outfit designed to place her on a potty chair without removing clothing.

"In China they start sitting babies on potties at nine months of age," Susan said. A custom that she did not continue.

The process required the family to travel 13 days in China, from Dec. 8-21, 1999. Unlike many adoptees, Katelyn was healthy and did not required medical care. She did not cry for two days, and then, according to her father, only when the realization hit her that if she cried loudly, she got food faster.

Travel went smoothly and the family enjoyed sightseeing jaunts to the Wailing Wall, Tiananmen Square and other points of interest. They were delighted to attend a Chinese church in session. Although no translator accompanied them, the Fishers recognized the tune to the audience sang as the Christian hymn, 'O Come All Ye Faithful."

Tara, wearing "I'm a big sister" sweatshirt accompanied her parents to China. When officials first introduced the Fisher family to Katelyn, she ran into Tara's arms, much to her big sister's delight.

"It was a full 20 minutes before I got a chance to hold Katelyn," Terry said.

> Katelyn's plight is not unusual in China, where the government penalizes urban women for giving birth to more than one child.

Although the adoption was finalized both in the United States and in China, the process of U.S. citizenship is still in progress. Recently the laws were changed to enable citizenship to be assumed whenever adoption is finalized, but this change was made after Katelyn was adopted. The government is still trying to determine how to handle cases such as Katelyn's.

The Fishers said it costs between $17,000-$20,000 to adopt a child from China.

According to Terry, the price of adoption should not deter prospective parents.

"God will find a way," he said.

"God took care of us every step of the way," Susan said. "We have had so much good luck compared to some other people who have gone through the adoption process."

The Fishers highly recommend Asian adoptions, but Terry cautions facetiously, "Someone in the family should be very good at paperwork."

The Fishers said they understand that China receives 1,000 requests monthly for adoptions.

The Fishers keep in contact with many of the families who traveled with them to China. They report that it seems every time they go shopping or to other public places, strangers stop them and tell them of a friend or family member who has or is pursuing an Asian adoption.

The Fishers plan on celebrating Adoption Day annually and to pursue some Chinese culture events.

"We even have other family ties to China," Susan said.

Terry has an uncle who taught English in the province where Katelyn was found, and he married a girl who grew up in that province.

When Katelyn is older, the Fishers hope to revisit China with her. Susan keeps detailed information about the adoption to share with Katelyn.

Both Susan and Terry grew up on Virginia farms and were graduated from Virginia Tech. Susan works as a Penn State supervising agent for the Expanded Food Nutrition Education Program and Terry works for Kauffman's Animal Health.

Katelyn shows no signs of her tumultuous start in the world. "Unless you count the terrible two's as a side effect," her mom said with a grimace.

When the family found Katelyn at the orphanage she was well ahead developmentally of other children her age. A fact that the Fishers found surprising after having been warned that the opposite would probably be true.

Now the active 20-month-old has an extensive vocabulary and never sits still.

"It's hard to believe we haven't had her a year. She seems like she has been part of our family forever," Susan said.

"We are so thankful."

Tara is quite proud to be the big sister, and likes to recall that it was her arms that Katelyn ran into the first time they met her.

Notes For Dads

Vickie Lewis
Penn State Extension

The Value of a Dad on Today's Market

The Stock Market goes up and down, up and down, and we wonder about the true value of our investment. But the value of a dad goes up and up and keeps on gaining in value.

Here's why. Four out of every 10 children will go to sleep in a home where a father does not live. The number of children living in a father-absent home has gone from 6 million in 1960 to 22 million in 1995. Society is showing the strain of this lack of dad's involvement. Research is showing that when a father is involved with his children, there are fewer behavior problems, higher levels of sociability, and higher levels of school performance.

Dads really do make a difference! Of course, when there's a dad in the home, economics are likely to be better. But the money isn't everything. Dads play an important role in nurturing their children. In the case of caring for an infant, a dad can learn a lot about himself, too!

As children continue to grow, dad's involvement in their lives includes helping with homework and with other school related activities. Even though we have thought of dads being involved with sons, daughters too, benefit from the time spent together with fathers.

One particular advantage is that gender identity can be learned as children see their dad interact with teachers, principals, and other adults. The opportunity of moral development is also present as kids model dad's behavior related to honesty, dependability, and courtesy. It's also important for the children to see Dad being helpful to Mom in the role she plays in the family.

What an opportunity to invest in something that will increase in value! A little time here, a little involvement there will pay big dividends in terms of family stability and growth.

Families that have this investment will function better in a crisis and will have some of the built-in resources to weather the difficult times that come to all families.

Research from the Family Information Services (1997) tells us some of the reasons. Economic barriers to a father's involvement are significant. Often a man's value is defined by how well he provides for his family. Young men who feel hopeless about their economic potential may choose to define their manliness in other ways and see little reason to invest emotionally in a family they can't support.

Poor preparation to parent is another reason why dads say they choose not to be involved. Signs of tenderness may have been squelched in dads at an early age, and they were taught to be tough. Opportunities for boys to develop their nurturing instincts are limited, and there are few fathers who are modeling this type of behavior.

Another reason for absent fathers might be women are the barrier to father involvement. In marriage, men are sometimes criticized because they don't change the diaper the way their female partners do. Sometimes women choose to have children and completely ignore the father as if he is not important in the life of the child. Sometimes it is advantageous for the woman to be the gatekeeper to family relations when male violence is the wedge that drives families apart.

The good news is that father involvement is being talked about and many programs are being developed to strengthen the role of the dad in the family. As these programs proliferate, and as society becomes more aware of the need for the father to be engaged with his family, we will continue to see more support for this important idea.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well -- until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Why every fisherman needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the fishermen catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into... there's a sure way to up your odds... simply try new fishing waters. Fish where few fishermen ever fish.

Professor Higbee's Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind... showing virtually all of the streams, rivers and lakes in each state.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

Death Of Floyd Collins

Oh, come all you young people
The fate of Floyd Collins
A lad we all know well
His face was fair and handsome
His heart was true and brave
But his body now lies sleeping

How sad, how sad the story
It fills our eyes with tears
Its memories too shall linger
A broken-hearted father
Who tried his boy to save
Will now weep tears of sorrow
At the door of Floyd's cave.

Oh, Mother, don't you worry
Dear, Father, don't be sad
I'll tell you all my story
In an awful dream I had
I dreamed I was a prisoner
My life I could not save
I cried, oh, must I perish

Oh, Floyd, cried his mother
Don't go, my son, don't go
It would leave us brokenhearted
If this should happed so
But Floyd would not listen
Advice his mother gave
So his body now lies sleeping
In a lonely sandstone cave.

His father often warned him
From follies to desist
He told him of the danger
And of the awful risk
But Floyd would not listen
To the oft-advice he gave
So his body now lies sleeping
In a lonely sandstone cave.

Oh! How the news did travel
Oh, how the news did go
It traveled through the papers
And over radio
A rescue party gathered
His life they tried to save
But his body now lies sleeping
In a lonely sandstone cave.

The rescue party gathered
They worked both night and day
To move the mighty barrier
That stood within the way
To rescue Floyd Collins
This was their battle cry
We'll never, no, we'll never Let Floyd Collins die.

But on that fatal morning
The sun rose in the sky
The workers still were busy
We'll save him by and by
But oh, how sad the ending
His life could not be saved
His body then was sleeping
In a lonely sandstone cave.

Young people, oh, take warning
From Floyd Collin's fate
And get right with your maker
Before it is too late
It may not be a sandstone cave
In which you'll find your tomb.
But at the bar of judgment
We too must meet our doom.

ADADC Scores

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — For many cities throughou American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) marketing area, fall means time for football and tailgating. To make sure football fans tailgating plans included cheese, ADADC arranged for publicity on key television stations to provide consumers with new, tasty ideas for both on-site and at-home tailgating.

In Syracuse, ADADC secured season tickets for Syracuse University Football, then worked with WIXT-TV to give the tickets away during two live placements, featuring tasty, easy-to-make tailgating treats such as feta cheese bites, roasted red pepper gorgonzola dip, and Mr. Food's Mega Cheese sandwiches. One placement featured a visit from the Syracuse University mascot, Otto the Orange, who stayed on to help the anchors deliver the weather forecast and give live traffic updates.

ADADC also arranged for similar placements on the highly rated "AM Buffalo" programs.

'Farmer D' Pays Tribute To All Agriculturalists

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

TROY (Bradford County) — With a compassionate look on his face, the aging farmer peers out across the landscape, quietly watching as the seasons slowly turn from summer to fall to winter to spring. This is his land and all is calm under his watch.

The annual ritual of watching the seasons turn with anticipation is echoed in farmer's faces across the nation. For this farmer, however, guarding the countryside is a never-ending task. He will stand tall, singing out a tribute to all farmers no matter where they live for as long as he is able. It was for this purpose that "Farmer D" was born.

Towering over the land, "Farmer D" stands 14-feet tall and was carved from an 80-foot tall white pine tree. Nelson and Sylvia Waffle, who commissioned the work, thought that carving a farmer would be a fitting tribute to an agricultural community.

When the couple saw that the tree in their front yard was beginning to die, they contacted Dennis Beach of Wapwallopen, who created the statue in May 1991.

Beach carved the entire statue using chain saws. The whole farmer is one piece with the exception of the fork, which was carved from a separate piece and craftily positioned inside "Farmer D's" curved hand.

For the first few years after the carving was complete, the Waffles were instructed to treat the wood with linseed oil and mineral spirits. After the wood was partially preserved, they were able to apply a coat of white oil based paint and, this past summer, decided to add some more detail to the statue. The base, which sports 168 rings, was preserved with one gallon of black wood sealant. With careful management, "Farmer D" will stand at watch for 25 to 30 years.

"Every year we try to add something," commented Sylvia. "We're giving him a gray beard and gray hair and a faded red shirt and denim blue overalls."

They also have been collecting pieces of vintage farm equipment to scatter around him and plan to do more landscaping work as time permits.

Although Nelson worked on a farm when he was 19 years old, he is not a farmer by profession. He moved to the Troy area in 1987 from LaPeer, Michigan. He met his wife, Sylvia, in nearby Mansfield while he was playing in a band called the "Country Drifters." But he has always felt a connection to the land.

"This was a 500-acre farm at one time," explained Nelson.

So, "Farmer D" faithfully watches over the rolling farmland of Northeastern Pennsylvania, greeting visitors who travel between Troy and Mansfield, ready to start each new day, no matter what the season. And, Nelson and Sylvia have greeted hundreds of visitors who can't help but stop to see the tribute to all farmers. Their guest book includes people from all over the United States and several countries. Even Prince Charles' cousin couldn't resist the urge to stop in to talk with Farmer D's creators.

"Everyone falls in love with it," said Sylvia. And it is clear that Nelson and Sylvia wouldn't trade their beloved farmer for anything.

Standing 14-feet tall, "Farmer D" watches the seasons turn as he looks out over the rolling hills of Northeastern Pennsylvania. "Someone should pay tribute to the farmers," said Nelson Waffle about his and Sylvia's decision to turn a dying white pine tree into a highly detailed statue of a farmer.

Mennonite Farming History In Europe And Pennsylvania

HINKLETOWN (Lancaster Co.) — The Swiss Pioneer Preservation Association plans a meeting on the history of Swiss Mennonites, who moved into French Alsace and the Pfalz in Germany where they innovated a new kind of sustainable agriculture before the migration to Pennsylvania. They pioneered the use of legumes and crop rotations to boost soil fertility.

The illustrated lecture by Mennonite historians Ivan Glick and Allan Keyser will explain how it all happened in Europe where Dutch Mennonites provided clover seed to the Swiss Mennonites as they moved into France and Germany. Later, they came to Pennsylvania, where they and the Quakers brought their unique farming methods.

The Dec. 1 lecture will focus on hay and grain harvest with special emphasis on the tools Lancaster County Mennonites used — including Joe Shirk's grain cradle. Machine development during most of 300 years up to Ed Nolt's New Holland baler invention, as well as Ike Smoker's bale thrower that beat John Deere's patents, will be detailed. A hands-on antique farm tool display is planned.

Keyser is a specialist on Pennsylvania Dutch food research, antique looms, and fabrics, as well as old buildings. He and Glick share an interest in the history of farming. They study the development of gristmills, covered bridges, barns, and old houses. Their barn research shows how barn designs change as farming practices change.

Starting time for the Dec. 1 meeting is at 7 p.m. The Christian Aid Ministries Warehouse is located at 2412 Division Highway, five miles east of Ephrata, on the north side of Route 322.

Admission is free. A free-will offering will be taken to benefit the Swiss Pioneer Preservation Association as they work to preserve the local landmarks.

Outstanding 4-H Equestrians Honored

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Lebanon County 4-H members enrolled in the horse project were honored for their outstanding accomplishments during the county recognition banquet held Nov. 3 at the Schaefferstown Fire Hall.

The 4-H horse program provides youth, between the ages of 8-19, with the opportunity to acquire horsemanship skills, learn horse care and management, and explore interests in the horse industry. Ownership of a horse, while desirable, is not required to participate in the 4-H program.

Dr. Nan Hanshaw Roberts, a veterinarian with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, presented a program on West Nile Virus focusing on how the disease effects horses. Members of the Lebanon County 4-H horse judging team made a presentation on the basics of horse judging.

Receiving awards for their achievements in the county grooming and showmanship contest were Kristi Klein, Lebanon; Bethany Parker, Annville; Natasha Holler, Lebanon; and Jennifer Campbell, Annville. Brandt's Mill & Saddlery, Lebanon sponsored the grooming and showmanship awards. Additional awards were presented to winners of county, district and state performance and production classes. H & H Tack Shop, Chapman Ford and First Union Bank sponsored the awards.

Outstanding project record book trophies were presented to Bethany Parker, Annville; Jennifer Campbell, Annville; and Melissa Hershey, Cleona. Members are required to keep detailed records of their feed costs, maintain a monthly stable record, and write a story of their project experiences. Members receiving gold ribbon awards for scoring 98 points and above on their record books included: Katie Eisenhauer, Lebanon; Sarah Levengood, Newmanstown; Lindsey Sattazahn, Annville; Ashley Zimmerman, Palmyra; Cody Gosch, Fredericksburg; and Jennifer Landis, Newmanstown.

Members of the county 4-H horse judging team which placed sixth in state competition were Kim George, Annville; Jennifer Landis, Newmanstown; Beth Parker, Annville and Lindsey Sattazahn, Annville.

Adult volunteers recognized for their leadership of the 4-H horse program included Amy Jo Gosch, Renee Levengood, Kristin Schellhamer, MicheVoydik, Tammy Beard, Alice Jones, Donald Parker, Kathy Phillips, Dave Sattazahn, John Tshudy, Eileen Yorty, Amy Zellers, Wilann Miller, and Barbara Stoyer.

Arc's Holiday Bed And Breakfast Tour Is Dec. 10

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Arc of Lancaster County will host the sixth annual Holiday Bed and Breakfast Tour on Sunday, Dec. 10, from 1-6 p.m. Proceeds from the event will help to provide support services for children and adults with mental retardation and their families.

Guests will have the opportunity to tour some of the most beautiful inns in Lancaster County. Participating inns include the following: The E.J. Bowman House, Neffsville; Blue Ball Bed and Breakfast, Blue Ball; Sheep Hill Bed and Breakfast, East Earl; The Candlelight Inn, Ronks; and Mill Creek Homestead Bed and Breakfast, Bird-in-Hand.

Eby's Pequea Farm Bed and Breakfast in Gordonville, though not being toured, is participating through a donation of a one-night stay as a door prize. Four other inns have also donated a stay at their inn as a door prize for some lucky tour participants.

Tickets for this spectacular event are $10 in advance or $12 if purchased at an inn the day of the event.

The ticket not only gains access to these superb inns, but also enables the guest to possibly win an overnight stay at one of the inns participating in the event. Tickets will be available after Nov. 1 at Park City Boscov's, Stauffers of Kissel Hill stores, Herr's Market in Marietta and the following locations of The Bank of Lancaster County: New Holland, Leola, Christiana, Strasburg, Greenfield, Millersville and Ephrata. Tickets can also be purchased at The Arc office or by mailing a check made out to The Arc along with a self-addressed stamped envelope to: The Arc, 630 Janet Avenue, Lancaster, PA 17601.

Whites Preserve Family Heirlooms In 1830 Stone Farmhouse

Janice White's grandfather wrote in a diary every day from 1893 to 1916. The 23 diaries offer personalized glimpses into the lives of relatives and community history.

Janice and Wilbur White have authentically restored an 1830 stone farmhouse. They found the original shutters with big strap hinges under a broken down back porch.

A peel was once used to remove pies from an outside bake oven. Janice White reports that it's been said that people often could tell if the temperature was right by the heat on the cook's face.

Janice White found old contracts, dating back as far as the mid-1700s, in an old box belonging to her grandfather. Included is a 1793 indentured servant contract from England that was signed with a spot of blood.

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

REEDSVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — If walls could talk and heirlooms could tell what they know, imagine how colorful and personal our view of our ancestors could be. While we know that objects can't speak, Janice White of Reedsville, Mifflin County, has found the next best thing — her grandfather's diaries dated 1893 to 1916.

"My grandfather William Mann Brisbin wrote in them every day until the day he died. I've read through all 23 diaries. I know what my father got for Christmas on his sixth birthday.

"Included also histories of Yeagertown and surrounding areas. He tells about the first day the trolley went through Yeagertown, the Yeager Mill, and Ax Factory, and the accidents at Standard Steel. It really must have been a dangerous place to work. This was at a time when people were giving up farming and moving to town."

Following the death of her first husband William Whitehead Brisbin, William Mann's daughter married J.M. Yeager for whom Yeagertown is named. A small power plant at the mill site furnished power for all of Yeagertown and had extra to sell.

"I remember my mother saying that my great grandmother was a Mann before she married, and I could never figure out how getting married changed her from a man to a woman," Janice said.

Janice found the diaries in an old box belonging to her grandfather. She also found a survey (on sheepskin) for a mid-1700 land grant for land near Fort Granville, Mifflin County.

"Fort Granville was burned in 1756 during the French and Indian War (1754-1760). The survey is signed by a Joseph Swift from Philadelphia and dated 1768. I tried to do research but didn't find anything more. There must have been very few people in our area then."

The box also contained a 1793 indentured servant contract from England that was signed with a spot of blood and an agreement for a female relative of Janice's grandfather's to borrow $1,600.

Janice, an only child, inherited her family antiques at age 23 when her parents passed away. "Fortunately, I appreciated them. I've just always liked antiques.

"In 1903, my grandparents built a new house in Yeagertown, and people were going crazy during the turn of the century for oak furniture. So my grandparents sent to Philadelphia for oak furniture for their new house and put the out-of-date furniture in the attic.

"My mother and father married in 1930, and, because of the Depression, my father lost his job the day they married. They had no furniture. My mother found the furniture in the attic and had a Norwegian named Gus Swanson in Reedsville refurbish it and that's what they used to start up housekeeping. My favorite is a walnut Hepplewhite table my grandmother used to cut pies on."

In 1973, Janice and her husband, Wilbur, made two dreams come true when they purchased a farm with an 1830 stone farmhouse. Wilbur, now

They spent the next 20 years ripping, repairing, and restoring the house themselves often adding a good bit of humor.

"I remember when a man came to do our taxes. He turned the doorknob to come in and it fell off. He pulled out the chair at the table and the back fell off. I had to reach up to a 4x4 on the ceiling to get electricity for his calculator. He asked if he should come back another time. I told him it would still be in repair then too."

Now, each room in the house has been authentically restored, from raised panel doors hiding the kitchen dishwasher to custom-made lighting designed to blend with the furnishings.

"I had the original window panes removed and reset in the frames. Did you know that if someone saw a crime through this type of window glass, the testimony was thrown out in court because the wiggly glass distorted things too much?"

Janice also points to two primitive portraits from the 1850s. "The men in these portraits, Bob Taylor and William Mann, are wearing the same suits and their hands are positioned the same. I'm told itinerant painters used to have the suits already painted and then just painted in the faces."

Janice and Wilbur have painstakingly preserved their family heirlooms for their four children, who also love antiques. But Janice is doing even more. "I started keeping a day book since I retired seven years ago. I haven't missed a day yet. I've written down some family stories, but I want to record more."

Storing Precious Linens And Lace

Fine linens and lace, regardless of age, deserve tender treatment. Although nothing can stop the natural aging process, certain storage precautions can control the damaging effects of light, pollution, temperature and humidity.

Ideal storage conditions include a light-free area with a temperature of 70 degree F and a humidity of about 50 percent. Direct light, whether natural or artificial, can cause fibers to break down and fade. Low temperatures and high humidity create condensation, which can yellow the fabric. High temperatures and low humidity create dry, brittle fibers that eventually crumble. Where air pollution is a problem, there is greater potential for damage from humidity and moisture.

Use acid-free paper to line storage boxes or containers. This special paper absorbs harmful acids in cardboard, wood and paper that can destroy fibers.

Periodically inspect stored linens and laces. Hands should be clean and any jewelry that might snag or tear the textiles should be removed. If damage has occurred, consult a professional, such as the textile expert at a local museum or university.

How To Identify Many Quilt Types

Recognizing the many types of quilts can be a challenge for beginning collectors. It also helps in dating them. Among them Crazy quilts, Album and Log Cabin.

Clues: Crazy quilts are a good example of unusual names, based on the fact they had no fixed design. However, their form and function has changed since they were first made in the American colonies. These were made from whatever fabric scraps were on hand, fitted together like a picture puzzle. As cloth became more available in the colonies, the Crazy quilts became a thing of the past, usually discarded. The Crazy quilt of the 1870s was totally different, with it's combination of everything from velvet to cotton, wool and silk. Other fabrics used were plush, satin and linen. It was called the "crazy patch quilt," with each block hand-sewn to a backing of coarsely woven material. Once sewn together, they were connected with fancy stitchery in variously colored threads. Collectors today look for examples with embroidered flowers, bugs and people as well as names. Even advertisements or pictures printed on satin and woven silk badges were used.

Among the most expensive quilts are those known as Album quilts, made in Baltimore, Maryland between 1846 and 1854. The name "album" was taken from the then popular hobby of putting mementos into scrapbooks. The album quilt used the same idea with sloth squares. Each of the squares had a central motif such as an animal or a flowering tree.

Other subjects for the applique squares used identifiable Baltimore buildings, religious motifs and overall geometric patterns. What makes them so special is the intricate piecing and applique work. For the special album bridal quilts almost invisible stitches were used. Each square was supposedly made by a different friend of the bride and autographed by the maker in India ink.

Log Cabin quilts are easily recognized since part of their designs always resemble the logs that were stacked in pioneer homes. As such, they are symbolic of the actual log cabins. The center square is usually red, representing the placement of a fireplace or hearth. They were popular in the late 19th century.

A Show quilt can also be a Crazy quilt or a Log Cabin quilt. They were made in those styles, but strictly for display and of silk. Other popular patterns such as the "Star of Bethlehem" were transformed to silk show quilts.

Currently, popular because of their bold colors and large geometric designs are Amish and Mennonite quilts. Printed fabrics were rarely used. Amish Crib quilts can be expensive not only because not many were made, but few have survived.

Patriotic or Freedom quilts always surfaced in times of war or surrounding some historical event such as the 1876 Centennial. They used such symbols as the Stars and Stripes, American heroes and statesmen. The most popular symbol was the American Bald Eagle. For quilters commemorating the 1976 Bicentennial, the eagle was an important motif.

A most fascinating, and lesser known type, is the Hawaiian (Kapa) quilt. It was a spinoff from missionaries' patchwork. It was made of two whole pieces of material and appliqued in a free-style Island motif, usually a single color on white. Pattern designs included the breadfruit, turtles, ferns, the crescent moon and basket of flowers.

Trapunto quilting began in fourteenth-century Italy. In America from 1800 through the Civil War, two layers of clothes were stitched together with a design: popular examples were flowers and vines. The use of batting stuffing in the largest design areas gave it a raised look.

You're Invited To Be Part Of The Mid Atlantic Area's
2001 AG DIRECTORY
This exclusive publication will serve as the ultimate resource guide for county agents and state agricultural agencies, and also serve as a "Yellow Pages" for farmers all across the Mid Atlantic.
The 2001 Ag Directory, will be included in Lancaster Farming's total circulation, and be distributed at the Pennsylvania and Keystone Farm Shows. That's more than 55,000 booklets in circulation! This Directory is the only one of its type to be distributed in this area.

Hey Brian
I was out buyin'
A present for you
But nothing seemed to do.
So I called my friend on the phone
All at once, the bright light shone-
Let's just tell the whole world.

Happy 30th Birthday!!!

7:00 PM

50.81 acre farm known as 337 Kennedy Street, Marion, PA. Located immediately off to exit 4 of Interstate Route 81 with all ground adjoining I-81 on the South side of the exit along the South bound lanes (West side). Farm includes a two story brick home, barn, corn crib and other small outbuildings. Property has well water and on-lot septic. Home is heated by oil space heaters. Farm home is secluded yet sits on I-81. Property plat plan also includes a right of way onto the farm immediately off the interchange.

OPEN HOUSE: Property may be seen by phoning Gateway Gallery Auction (717) 263-6512 and scheduling an appointment.

AUCTIONEER'S NOTE: an exceptional farm which offers tremendous potential. How much ground becomes available at an I-81 interchange? Photos available on our website www.gatewayauction.com

TERM: Buyer will pay $20,000 cash or certified funds when property is struck down, balance due within 45 days. Other terms evening of sale.

Progressive Pressure Systems Hires Bridges

ROTHSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Progressive Pressure Systems has announced the hiring of James Bridges of Reading as an additional mechanic to assist in the repairs of pressure cleaning equipment.

Bridges comes to Progressive Pressure Systems with a vast amount of knowledge in the industrial equipment repair industry.

Some of Bridges' accomplishments include past factory instructor for Thermo King in Minneapolis, Minn. for three and a half years, teaching all phases of transport refrigeration.

He then went on to work for two Caterpillar dealerships. One was at Wyoming Machinery in Casper, Wyo. where he worked in management and as a master field mechanic for 11 years. The other was at Giles and Ransome in Allentown where he worked as a technical field specialist for five and a half years.

James Bridges

Bridges also worked for Brubacher Excavating in Bowmansville as a master mechanic

Bank Names Agriculture Officer

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Jared Rottmund of Akron has been named agriculture loan calling officer in the agricultural lending division of the Business Financial Center of Fulton Bank. In this position, he will be responsible for agricultural loans.

Rottmund comes to Fulton Bank from Farmers First Bank where he was an agricultural loan trainee/marketing representative.

Outside of Fulton Bank, Rottmund is a member of the Ephrata Area Young Farmers Association and the chairman of the Denver Swine Show. He also serves on the committee for the Harrisburg Farm Show and the Keystone International Livestock Expo.

Rottmund has a degree in business management from Harrisburg Area Community College.

Aventis Set To Join Program

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. — BASF and Aventis Crop Sciences, USA LP, announced that they have signed a letter of intent to facilitate their continuing negotiations concerning Aventis participation in the Harvest Partners® preferred customer program from BASF.

The program, launched in 1993, is a loyalty program that rewards eligible, participating Harvest Partners program members for the purchase of selected products and services. Assuming negotiations are successfully completed, BASF and Aventis would both offer the program, but each company would have separate promotions for Harvest Partners program member participation and product eligibility. Aventis would have selected products in the program in 2001.

The proposed arrangement, say the companies, would give participating Harvest Partner program members increased opportunities to earn Harvest Points® award credits for valuable redemption items. For retailers, participation in the industry's first and only preferred customer program means they would be able to fulfill Aventis product promotions quickly and efficiently through a single fulfillment mechanism.

Assuming negotiations between the companies result in final agreement, Aventis would join the awards program that now includes participation by BASF and Novartis. Negotiations are under way to add several other manufacturers and suppliers to the program.

"We are pleased that another major crop protection supplier wishes to enter the program," said John Rabby, BASF group vice president, North America. "This demonstrates the strength of the Harvest Partners preferred customer program in reaching our grower audience while providing significant product choices in crop protection. We look forward to completing negotiations with Aventis welcoming them to the program."

Asgrow Introduces Innovative Soybean Varieties

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia soybean growers will have several new Asgrow soybean varieties to choose from in 2001.

They join the existing strong lineup of Asgrow soybeans that offer growers advanced technologies for improved potential for growth and profit.

"These new Asgrow seeds combine the best defensive and agronomic traits for maximum crop productivity," said Rob Hannam, market manager. "We're discovering new ways to help plants protect themselves. These elite new seeds reflect our continued investment in turning seed science into more profit potential for the farmer."

The new soybean varieties include AG4403 and AG5501.

• AG4403 is a mid-Group IV Roundup Ready® variety that is a trendsetter for high yields in its maturity. It has excellent emergence and moderate resistance to Race 3 of soybean cyst nematode. This variety can be positioned in fields where Frogeye leaf spot, southern stem canker, and brown stem rot have been problems.

• AG5501 is a high-yielding mid-Group V Roundup Ready variety with resistance to soybean cyst nematode. This variety exhibits very good standability, excellent tolerance to southern stem canker, and excellent Frogeye leaf spot tolerance.

Stump Grinder Attachment Now Twice As Powerful As Previous Generation

FARGO, N.D. — Bobcat Company, a business unit of Ingersoll-Rand, announced the new BobcatSG60 Stump Grinder attachment.

Ideal for Bobcat 773, 863, 873, and 864 standard and high-flow skid-steer loaders, the new SG60 stump grinder is twice as powerful as the previous SG50 model.

Using a Bobcat 863 high-flow loader as the power source, the SG60 can grind a stump 30-inches in diameter to a depth of 10-inches below grade in less than 10 minutes.

The grinding head is mounted 90 degrees to the operator, as opposed to traditional mounting that positions the cutter wheel in front of the mounting unit. The new 90-degree position provides operators with unprecedented visibility to the cutting area.

Ideal for Bobcat 773, 863, 873, and 864 standard and high-flow skid-steer loaders, the new SG60 stump grinder is twice as powerful as the previous SG50 model.

The swing cylinder generates an arc of 80 degrees, allowing the operator to cut up to a 45-inch diameter stump without repositioning. A 32-inch cutting height provides better access for grinding tall stumps, and a 58-inch reach means less forward movement of the loader, allowing operators to save time.

The cutting wheel incorporates 32 teeth: 14 right, 14 left, and four straight teeth. The backside of each tooth is supported by a unique holder for increased durability and performance.

The valve design controls the speed of the swing circuit to prevent the cutting wheel from stalling in the cut. When the pressure in the cutter wheel's drive motor reaches a threshold level, the control valve reduces the amount of oil to the swing circuit, thus reducing the swing speed and maintaining the cutter speed.

The SG60 delivers optimum performance using a high-flow loader. Loaders with 20 to 22 gpm hydraulic flow provide satisfactory operation. Loaders with 18 gpm will be able to operate the grinder, but with lower performance levels.

NC+ Unveils 2001 Payment Plan Designed To Give Customers More Value

LINCOLN, Neb. — NC+ is expanding its Farm Plan® financing payment options to offer additional value for customer purchases for the 2001 growing season.

"We want to continue to provide value to our customers," NC+ Director of Sales and Marketing Gene Kronberg said. "Does our new payment program do this? The answer is an unqualified yes. Adding product value is a key issue for farmers and justifiably so. That's why we've addressed it with this program."

NC+ is adding a new third option called Seasonal Terms to their Farm Plan financing program. The agreement allows customers to lock in at a fixed rate of 7.5 percent APR that starts at the date of purchase with the option to defer payments until December 2001. NC+ is also waiving the five percent administration fee that would normally go with the Seasonal Terms option. This option is being offered by NC+ from November 2000 through March of 2001.

"If a customer selects the Seasonal Option under the Farm Plan, we are not restricting them from taking additional advantage of the cash discount program we offer," Kronberg said. "And our cash discount program is as aggressive as any in the industry."

The NC+ Early Payment Discounts range from 11 percent to two percent depending on which deadline date the customer chooses to make payment.

NC+ will continue to offer the 120 days No-Payments/No-Interest and Regular Terms options as part of their Farm Plan program. The 3.25 percent administrative fee normally assessed for the 120 days option has been waived for 2001 purchases. Farm Plan Dividends, a customer reward based on monthly Farm Plan charge volume, also provides additional value on the purchase of NC+ seed.

Claas Presents 15,000th Jaguar Forage Harvester To Wisconsin Farmer

COLUMBUS, Ind. — Claas of America presented Ron Micke, De Pere, Wis., with a special edition 15,000th Jaguar self-propelled forage harvester at the 2000 Farm Progress Show.

Dr. Theo Freye, president, Claas of America; Martin Richenhagen, vice president worldwide sales and marketing, Claas KGaA, Harsewinkel, Germany; James Walker, Claas of America vice president sales and marketing; and Carey Vanderloop, • Vanderloop Equipment Inc., a Claas of America dealer, [redacted] Wis., presented Micke [redacted] unique forage harvester.

A dairy farmer, Micke and his family farm 5,000-acres and milk 1,700 Holsteins.

The presentation of the Jaguar ends a nine-month auction of the one-of-a-kind forage harvester. Since the beginning of the year, farmers have had an opportunity to bid on the Jaguar at farm shows and on-line where a virtual auction was conducted. Micke was the highest bidder.

The one-of-a-kind self-propelled forage harvester was manufactured in Claas' plant in Harsewinkel, Germany to mark the production of the 15,000th Jaguar self-propelled forage harvester off the assembly line. The Jaguar has many unique features not normally found on standard production machines including an unique airbrush finish, leather seats, and other special additions.

Ridge Administration Announces 35 More Farms To Be Preserved

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. announced the approval of 35 farms — totaling nearly 4,000-acres — for preservation.

The announcement brings the total number of farms preserved since January to 253 — the most preserved during any year since Pennsylvania's farmland-preservation program began in 1989.

"In Pennsylvania, we're serious about protecting agriculture land, and preserving the proud and productive heritage of Pennsylvania's 60,000 farm families," Hayes said. "Thanks to the leadership of Gov. Ridge's extraordinary 'Growing Greener' initiative, and the hard work of the state and county farmland-preservation boards, Pennsylvania is preserving farmland at a pace greater than any other state in the nation.

"Gov. Ridge set the tone during January's Farm Show, when he challenged state and county farmland-preservation boards to protect 100 farms in the '100 days of Growing Greener' — from Farm Show to Earth Day.

"Pennsylvania's agriculture community eagerly answered the call — preserving 101 farms, totaling 12,400-acres.

"During the fall, the preservation board set a goal to preserve 100 more. We did, and then some. In fact, we've protected more farms in Pennsylvania this year than during any year since the program began. And you can bet more will be preserved in December.

Created in 1989, the Pennsylvania Agricultural Land Preservation Board oversees the state Farmland Preservation Program, which allows the state and counties to purchase development rights, referred to as easements, to guarantee that farms will remain as agricultural land.

Including the nine county-owned easements in Lancaster, Perry, Westmoreland, and York counties, the Farmland Preservation Program has protected 1,446 farms — totaling 177,803-acres — since 1989.

In addition, the state Agriculture Land Preservation Board also approved Allegheny County as the 51st county to enter the state's Farmland Preservation Program.

Ridge signed the "Growing Greener" initiative into law on Dec. 15, 1999, investing nearly $650 million in Pennsylvania's environment — including $100 million for farmland preservation — over five years.

To celebrate the largest environmental investment in Pennsylvania history — and to begin to get these dollars into our communities as quickly as possible — Ridge launched the "100 Days of Growing Greener" at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in January.

In May, the General Assembly passed Gov. Ridge's 2000-2001 budget, which includes $135 million to fund the second year of the five-year "Growing Greener" initiative. The funds come from $100 million in new money from the General Fund and $35 million redirected from existing funding sources.

For a list of farms preserved in 2000, or for more information on Pennsylvania's Farmland Preservation Program, contact the state Agriculture Department's Press Office, or visit the department's homepage through the Pennsylvania PowerPort at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us.

USDA To Host First Meeting Of Meat Industry's B2B Data Standards Group

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA will host the first meeting of MeatXML.org, a new voluntary organization that will set electronic supply-chain standards for the meat industry, here Feb. 22.

Kathleen Merrigan, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said, "AMS believes its support for these standards is critical to facilitating an open and efficient meat and poultry supply chain in the electronic age."

This voluntary consensus standards body is being formed with the objective of developing data trading terminology that can be used industry-wide to facilitate Internet-based business-to-business (B2B) trading. This first meeting will focus on providing an overview of how extensible markup language, known as XML, facilitates electronic data exchange among companies using the Internet and the value of industry-wide standards. The group will also review the proposed structure and administration of the standards body and the process it will use to approve new or revised standards. The meeting will be open to the public.

Representatives from companies involved in meat and poultry production and processing, retail distribution, and commerce network integration are encouraged to attend.

More information about the February meeting can be found at www.ams.usda.gov-/meatxml.htm and www.meatxml.org.

Direct Marketing Conference Sets Jan. 18 Registration Deadline

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — Jan. 18 is the deadline to register for the upcoming Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference and Trade Show, set for Feb. 21-24 here.

The conference will provide expert advice and information for agricultural direct-sale businesses, including pick-your-own produce operations, roadside stands, and farmers' markets.

The theme for this year's conference is "Charting a New Course." Topics will include agritourism, community relations, customer service, business planning, food safety, buying techniques, visual presentation, advertising, e-commerce, retirement planning, and liability insurance.

Three preconference seminars are also planned. The first is the three-day Franklin-Covey 7 Habits™ workshop, which seeks to improve both personal and professional performance. In the other two seminars, participants may explore strategies for success at public farmers' markets and the possibilities offered by the gift basket business.

The trade show will feature more than 50 exhibitors with products and services ranging from packaging and labeling supplies to fun activities for children, as well as private labeled items, gift shop suggestions, and more.

Post-conference tours — both virtual and actual — will showcase several area operations in action including a family dairy farm in Chesapeake and the Virginia Beach Farmers' Market.

For reservation information, contact Cathy Belcher, cbelcher@vdacs.state.va.us, (804) 786-4046 or click on www.madmc.com. Register for the conference and make hotel reservations by Jan. 18 to ensure the best rates. The registration fee for the Franklin-Covey workshop must be paid by Dec. 29.

Lower Service Fee For Farm Bureau Workers' Comp

GLENMONT, N.Y. — New York Farm Bureau's Workers' Compensation Safety Group #486's Executive Committee has lowered the group's service fee for the upcoming year.

The service fee is used not only to administer the 2,600-farmer member group, but also to support the efforts of New York Farm Bureau on behalf of its members in a wide array of areas, such as efforts to promote school tax and sales tax reforms.

Safety Group #486 has exhibited proven stability and longevity since its inception in 1968.

"The service fee has been gradually trending upwards in recent years," said Daniel Hooker, New York Farm Bureau's director of member services. "We are very happy to see that trend reverse, putting us substantially below the state's maximum allowable amount. Our Safety Group Executive Committee has provided aggressive leadership in responding to the needs of the members and to the dictates of the market. I am sure that this is just the tip of the iceberg when it comes to an even more competitive and business-like Safety Group."

The New York Farm Bureau's Safety Group writes workers' compensation policies for nursery, sod, dairy, horse boarding and breeding operations, fruit, vegetable, berry, grape, poultry and greenhouse operations, in addition to feed manufacturing and retail grain and seed stores.

Farm Bureau members needing workers' compensation insurance or those farmers not yet members of New York Farm Bureau can obtain more details by calling (800) 342-4143.

New Formulation Successfully Tested Over Additional RR Crops

WEST DES MOINES, Iowa — Zeneca Ag Products has successfully tested a new Touchdown® non-selective herbicide in over-the-top applications on Roundup Ready® (RR™) soybeans, corn, and cotton. Zeneca anticipates registration of new Touchdown for the 2001 growing season.

The current Touchdown 5 formulation has been widely used over RR soybeans and for burndown weed control, according to Bill Beutke, brand manager at Zeneca. But the company never registered Touchdown 5 over RR corn or cotton because it sometimes caused unacceptable levels of phytotoxicity on those RR crops.

"The new Touchdown features a new, innovative glyphosate molecule optimized by a unique, corn-based, balanced adjuvant system called IQ Technology™," Beutke said. "In trials conducted by Zeneca and universities across the U.S., the new, patented Touchdown formulation has delivered outstanding non-selective weed control and excellent crop safety to RR crops including RR corn and RR cotton. In hundreds of trials we saw essentially no effect on the crops at all, even when the herbicide was applied at three times the normal rate."

In addition to RR corn and cotton, Beutke said new Touchdown will be registered as a burndown application in more than 100 new, additional crops, including cotton, small grains, grasses, numerous horticultural crops, and several legumes.

"We expect to have all the applications that were on the Touchdown 5 label, plus many more," he said.

The new IQ Technology improves spray retention, herbicide uptake, and translocation of the active ingredient throughout the weed, Beutke said. At the same time, it minimizes potential phytotoxicity to RR crops because the glyphosate salt and adjuvants are very gentle to epidermal cells on leaf surfaces.

Touchdown controls more than 170 weeds, including tough-to-control species such as velvetleaf, cocklebur, waterhemp, giant ragweed, smartweed, ivyleaf morningglory, prickly sida, quackgrass, johnsongrass, bermudagrass, broadleaf signalgrass, and foxtails. A typical use rate for the new Touchdown in many situations will be one quart per acre.

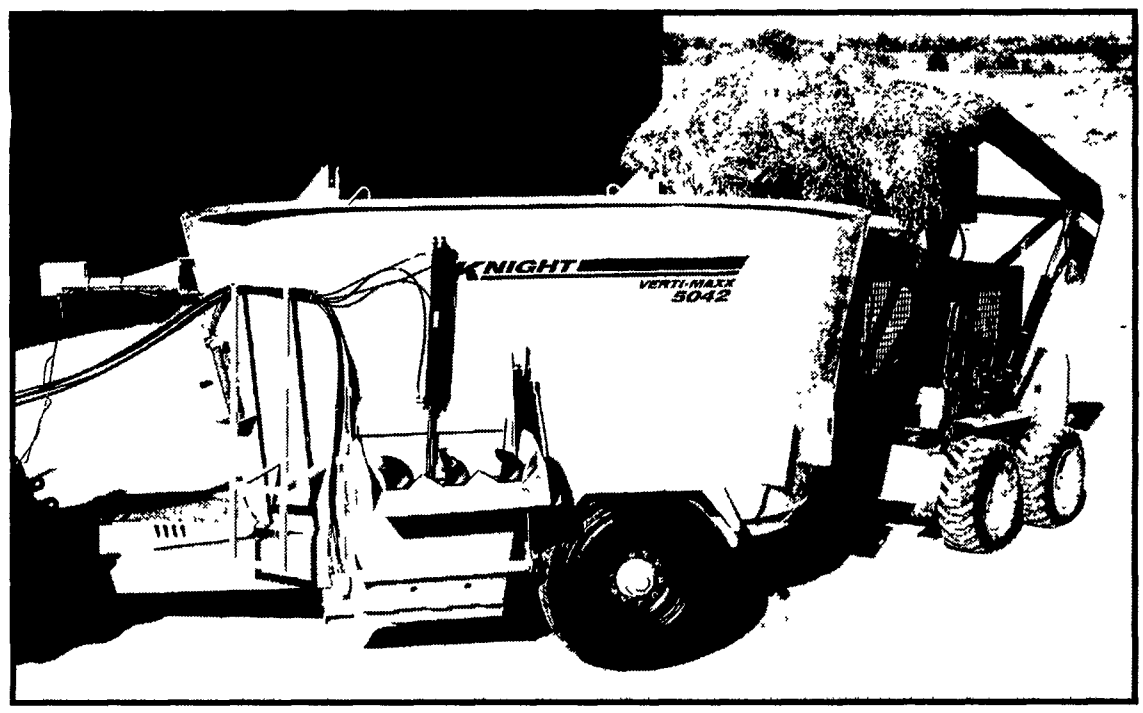
KNIGHT Verti-Maxx Mixers

Introducing Models 5042 and 5060
420 and 600 cubic feet
Trailer and Truck Applications



The new Knight Verti-Maxx is the most innovative vertical mixer ever built. Its exclusive design features a simpler drive system, a lower loading height, and delivers a more consistent, thorough mix with faster processing time, all at a competitive price.

The Verti-Maxx twin augers and bull gear drive* provide the best performance, dependability and value in the industry, day in and day out.

Check out these features and benefits:

- The Verti-Maxx vertical mixer mixes the widest variety of feedstuffs, including large round bales, large square bales, and baleage.
- Twin augers provide faster material movement and a thorough mixing action.
- Twin auger design also provides a lower loading height for easier loading.
- The bull gear drive (BGD) is a simple, more dependable drive.
- The side delivery door with 3-auger chute provides a faster, more even discharge.

Snow Push

#1 - Tackle the biggest parking lots and driveways. Get very close to garage doors and in and out of tight spots. Eliminates the need for hand cleanup or the need for another piece of equipment.

#2 - The optional PULL KIT makes this product perfect for residential jobs. Attaches easily and quickly giving you the ability to pull snow or other material away from buildings or doorways

#3 - Available in 6 5 ft., 7 5 ft , 8.5 ft. and 10.5 ft lengths

Clean up feed lot also!

Top dress wide spread or heavy application regulated by door opening. Material is pulverized by heavy duty hammers eliminating frozen chucks and piles of manure, good even thorough spreading commercial grade construction to give many years of trouble free spreading. With a Knight, twin patented auger you can circulate manure with door closed and not pushing material out over the front of the spreader.

Krause 7300 & 7400 Series Disc Harrows

25 years ago Hoober, Inc. introduced Krause Rockflex disc harrows to the East. Since then Krause discs have been the undisputed leader when it comes to finishing seedbeds on Eastern farms.

The new 7300 & 7400 Series Krause Rockflex disc harrows are in a class by themselves when it comes to getting the job done in tough conditions. Plus, Krause Rockflex technology backed by Hoober's outstanding service and parts support is as good as it gets. Krause Rockflex disc harrows from Hoober... a great idea for 25 years.

Give Thanks to the Lord

K.J.V. Psalm 107:1

At an early age, children are taught to say "thank you" when they are given something. Parents try to instill in their children the feeling of being grateful and the importance of acknowledging when someone does something good for them. Children learn by our example as well as our words, and they are quick to imitate their parents' habits. Thanking those who have been good or helpful to us is common courtesy. We should also be expressing our appreciation to God for his many blessings Recognizing God as our sustaining source of life, and being appreciative of His great love will draw us closer to Him and help us to be better people. A sincere and honest "thank you" is a blessing to the giver as well as to the receiver, and it indicates that a person's good deed or helpful action was not in vain.

We at BHM Farm Equipment would like to take this time to thank the Lord for His bountiful blessings and thank everyone for their patronage and friendship.

Happy Thanksgiving

Improving Beef Industry Focus For Researchers, Community Leaders

WOOSTER, Ohio — A beef industry consortium representing five Mid west states is seeking to establish a more efficient regional beef production and marketing system by keeping producers informed of industry trends from calf conception to human consumption.

Researchers from Ohio State University, Purdue University, Michigan State University, University of Illinois and University of Kentucky have been awarded a $2.5 million USDA grant to collaborate with state departments of agriculture, commodity organizations, and industry representatives.

Of that amount, $174,893 has been awarded to Ohio State.

The goal of the project is to strengthen economic opportunities for beef producers by sharing production management practices and marketing and information technology within a fragmented industry.

"The beef industry is a challenge as it is very segmented," said Steve Loerch, Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center researcher who is part of the consortium. "Producers can't control the product from when it's conceived to when it's consumed. There is no power of consolidation and no mechanism exists that allows producers to make decisions on the end product."

Loerch said that unlike the poultry industry where producers maintain ownership of their product through the production process to consumer marketing, the beef industry lacks a method that allows producers to track animals through the production process, share information with other producers during this process, or study marketing trends that would make their product more profitable. There are several independently owned and operated segments in the beef industry, including seedstock, feedlot, processor, distributor, and retailer. As a result, an animal may change ownership several times during the production process.

This segmentation stems in part from economic changes in the beef industry over the past 20 years that has favored large operators. Since the late 1970s, the industry has been beef consumption across the U.S. steadily drop with small-to medium-sized producers from such states as Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois feeling the effects, as they have been unable to compete with larger conglomerates. According to the National Agricultural Statistics Services, since 1986, one out of every three cattle operations in the region has folded, thereby reducing the number of processors and limiting beef production and marketing in the area.

"We produce only three percent of the beef that is consumed in Ohio. This statistic, in fact, is true for the region as a whole," said Loerch, adding that there are approximately 20,000 beef producers in Ohio with an average herd size of 15 head. He emphasized that keeping producers competitive in the industry would enable them to customize production on an individualized basis, thereby improving production efficiency and produce better quality animals.

Reaching that goal involves two objectives: developing an education and outreach effort with training and certification programs; and creating an electronic verification system to track cattle as they move through the industry.

Loerch said industry partnerships have already been established to focus on the outreach program. The verification system involves ear-tagging cattle with identification information that can be stored in a software program and accessed at any time during the production or marketing process.

"We want people at all stages of production to know what's going on all the time. The verification program tracks how the animal gets handled, how it goes through the process, what shots it needs to keep it healthy," said Loerch. "Passing information through the marketing system back to producers enables us to find out which management system is most profitable in terms of efficiency, food safety and food quality."

The project, funded for three years, will initially involve 5,000 head of cattle, 1,000 head per state. By the third year, the participants hope to increase that number to 30,000 head throughout the five-state region.

Project participants intend to develop a viable economic model to study business relationships and profit sharing and focus on a unified regional animal health and quality assurance program. Such an effort would not only directly improve economic opportunities for beef producers, but also would indirectly benefit the regional economy. The National Cattlemen's Beef Association estimates that every dollar generated from beef sales results in $4 contributed to the regional economy. So, for example, if weaned calves from the five-state regional herd of 2.5 million cattle were sold for $400 each, $4 billion would be generated for the area economy.

Hayes Visits Horse Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "They ride into Harrisburg from across Pennsylvania for the 4-H Horse Show. Skill. Competition. Sportsmanship. And the 4-H'ers are all winners," said Sam Hayes, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture.

Beef Demand On Upward Path

DENVER, Colo. — Demand for beef continues to show strength, according to preliminary Beef Demand Index figures and other research.

The preliminary figures show that demand increased 6.17 percent during the third quarter of 2000, as compared to the third quarter of 1999.

Other research confirms the positive news for beef. According to Cattle-Fax consumer expenditures on beef are expected to surpass $53 billion in 2000 — the first time ever that annual expenditures for beef have exceeded $50 billion. Total beef expenditures were about $49.4 billion in 1999.

"These statistics are further evidence that our beef checkoff programs are on the right track," says Les McNeill, a beef producer from Panhandle, Tex., and chairman of the Beef Board.

WITH THE ROUNDUP READY[1] GENE

Pioneer® brand soybean varieties with the Roundup Ready[1] gene are delivering winning yields on thousands of farms across the country[2] With traits that fit specific needs, such as disease and pest resistance, strong emergence and solid standability through harvest. And that's helped make Pioneer varieties with the Roundup Ready gene the number one choice of soybean growers[3] for higher yields and the most profit, most often.

1 Registered trademark of Monsanto Company
2 Pioneer leader varieties with the Roundup Ready gene have won over 65% of on farm side by-side trials based on more than 12 000 weigh wagon comparisons across North America from 1998 2000

"This Mixer Really Mixes Hay"
- Willis Conrad, Jr., Cedar Lane Farm

"We feed 8 lbs. of hay per cow. Our old Oswalt 250 couldn't handle that kind of volume. This Rotomix 354 that we got from Lapp's Barn Equipment, mounted on a 1980 International truck, does a great job. It handles 600 lb. of hay by weight."

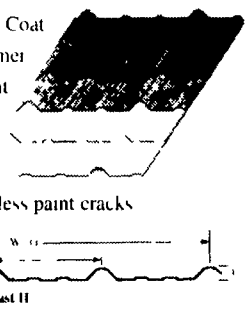
Everlast Roofing, Inc. Metal Roofing & Siding

The Ultimate G-100 Process
"The Best"



1. Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2. Epoxy Primer
3. Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4. G-100 Zinc Coating
5. Full Hard Steel (80,000 min yield)
6. Heat formed, less paint cracks
7.
Everlast II

NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

1 One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
2 Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider.
4 G-100 Galvanized· Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
5 Full Hard Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
6 Heat formed Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7 Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L F
8 Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53 37 Per Square $1 69 Per L F

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY

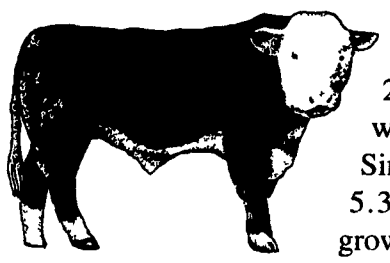
BEEF TIPS

Pennsylvania Bull Test - Year 2000



The top two bulls for average daily gain for the 1999-2000 Pennsylvania Bull Test were a Black Angus and a Black Simmental with both averaging 5.3 pounds of average daily growth. The differences between the two animals included this significant number: the amount of backfat on each animal. The Angus had .39 inches of fat on its back, while the Simmental bull, owned by John Myers, had only .30 inches of backfat or 25% less. It is this muscle growth, leanness, and cutability that many commercial cattlemen look for when they crossbreed continental breeds such as the Simmental breed with the English breeds. Simmental breeders are now breeding their Simmental animals to make crossbreeding easier and safer with Angus, Herefords, and Shorthorns.

BALDRIDGE CORN SILAGE HYBRIDS

*With Baldridge silage hybrids, most dairyman can feed more silage and less grain while getting a 3 to 4 pound increase in milk production per cow per day. Silage hybrids ranging in maturity from 104 days to 123 days. For more information or to place an order call 1-800-639-4484.

ROASTED BEANS FOR PROFIT

Some of the many advantages of using Roasted Soybeans

* All natural protein with no harmful chemicals or fillers
* Very high bypass protein, unlike solvent soybean meal
* Increases ration palatability to heighten dry matter intake
* Includes a broad spectrum of the essential amino acids
* High protein and energy, yet low neutral detergent fiber (NDF)
